Report Raps Conviction of Tom Mooney

Findings of Wickersham
Body Made Public
For First Time

LISTS 9 FINDINGS

Montana Senator Asks Freedom for "Victims Of Judicial Tyranny"

New York—(P)—The report of a sub-committee of the Wickersham commission dealing with the Billings-Mooney bombing case was published today with an introduction in which Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, expressed the hope that its publication would "aid in freeing these victims of judicial tyranny and wiping from our national escutcheon this ugly stain."

The authors of the sub-committee report on "lawlessness in law enforcement," which included the case of the Billings-Mooney case, were Dr. Zachariah Chaffee, Jr., of Harvard Law school, Carl Stern and Walter Pollack. The sub-committee was headed by Federal Judge W. S. Kenyon of Iowa.

"When the Kenyon report appeared on Aug. 10, 1932," Senator Wheeler wrote in the introduction, "this portion of the experts' work had been, so far as the public was concerned, suppressed."

"It should have been, I think, printed with the original Wickersham report."

After a lengthy review of the case the report ends with the following nine conclusions:

"1.—There was never any scientific attempt made by either the police or the prosecution to discover the perpetrators of the crime. The investigation was in reality turned over to a private detective, who used his position to cause the arrest of the defendants. The police investigation was reduced to a hunt for evidence to convict the arrested defendants."

"2.—There were flagrant violations of the statutory law of California by both the police and the prosecution in the manner in which the defendants were arrested and held incommunicado, and in the subsequent searches of their homes to procure evidence against them."

"3.—After the arrest of the defendants, witnesses were brought to the jails to identify them, and their identifications were accepted by the police and the prosecution, despite the fact that these witnesses were never required to pick the defendants out of a line up or to demonstrate their accuracy by any other test."

"4.—Immediately after the arrests of the defendants there commenced a deliberate attempt to arouse public prejudice against them, by a series of almost daily interviews given to the press by prosecuting officials."

"5.—Witnesses were produced at the trials with information in the hands of the prosecution that seriously challenged the credibility of the witnesses, but this information was deliberately concealed."

"6.—Witnesses were permitted to testify at the trials, despite such knowledge in the possession of the prosecution of prior contradictory statements told by the witnesses, as to make their mere production a vouching for perjured testimony."

"7.—Witnesses were coached in their testimony to a degree that approximated subordination of perjury. There is a strong inference that some of this coaching was done by prosecuting officials, and other evidence points to knowledge by the prosecuting officials that such coaching was being practiced on other witnesses."

"8.—The prejudice against the defendants, stimulated by newspaper publicity, was further appealed to act at the trials by unfair and intemperate arguments to the jury in the opening and closing state-ments of the prosecuting attorneys."

"9.—After the trials, the disclosures casting doubt on the justice of the convictions were minimized, and every attempt made to defeat the liberation of the defendants, by a campaign of misrepresentation and propaganda carried on by the officials who had prosecuted them."

PREMIER OTTO BRAUN

Prussian Premier For Cooperation With Federal Body

Will Work "With Other Responsible Authorities Wherever Possible"

Berlin—(P)—Premier Otto Braun of Prussia, recognized yesterday by the supreme court as the constitutional head of the Prussian state, indicated today after a cabinet meeting that he is willing to cooperate with the federal authorities who took over administration of Prussia last July.

The supreme court decision which recognized Braun's authority also accepted the constitutionality of the replacement by the federal chancellor of the Prussian ministry, justifying the act by the existence at the time of widespread political unrest in Prussia.

Premier Braun's statement issued this afternoon read:

"It is the unanimous view of the Prussian ministry that the decision of the supreme court is an authoritative and proper basis for disentangling this situation. Accordingly the ministry has not only the right but the duty to exercise the functions left to it by the court's decision."

"The state government will exercise them by cooperation with other responsible authorities wherever possible, and will be guided solely by the interests of the state and the nation."

Number of Brief Talks, Hoover Plan

President to Make Series Of Brief Stops on In- dianapolis Trip

Washington—(P)—President Hoover arranged today to make a number of brief talks enroute to and from his fourth major political speech in the midwest, to be delivered in Indianapolis Friday night.

Abandoning his desk in the executive offices, he decided on this program in the Lincoln study of the White House, where he sequestered himself much of the day at work on the addresses.

Mr. Hoover today also gave thought to brief speeches he will deliver in Philadelphia and probably in Wilmington, Del., next Monday, while enroute to lengthier speeches in Newark, N. J., during the same afternoon and another in New York that night.

Plans for his first eastern campaign trip have not been completed, nor has he settled upon his schedule after Monday. Indications have been given, however, that he plans to spend a considerable part of his time up to election in railroad travel.

With Mrs. Hoover, the president will leave the national capital Tuesday night at 11 p. m., for Indianapolis.

Postal Receipts for 3 Months Show Decline

Washington—(P)—The postoffice department has reported to Chairman Mead of the house postal committee, that although receipts from 50 cities for the three months ending September were less than last year, they indicated the higher postal rates actually brought in additional revenue over what might have been raised otherwise.

Harold N. Graves, executive assistant to the postmaster general, in a letter to Mead, reported that receipts from "fifty selected offices for the September quarter 1932 were $73,410,579 as compared with $74,301,583 in the similar period of 1931, and $81,400,987 in 1930."

Alleged Liquor Runner Murdered in Chicago

Chicago—(P)—The fifth gang victim within a week was "rubbed out" today.

Joe Faranelli, 34, reputed liquor runner and president of the Italian-Americanization club, was killed by revolver fire from a parked automobile as he stood on the sidewalk in front of club headquarters this morning.

The slaying came as police were investigating the deaths of four others believed to have been victims of hoodlum warfare. As in the cases of the other slayings, police attributed the motive to rivalry in the liquor business.

V. F. W. Carry Bonus Request To President

Also Urge Legislation Providing Pensions for Widows, Orphans

FOR DEBTS PAYMENT

Favor Preservation of Pres- ent Disability Allow- ances to Vets

Washington—(P)—Immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus, the enactment of legislation granting pensions to widows and orphans of World war veterans and preservation of disability allowances were recommended to President Hoover today by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The appeal, conveying actions taken at the 33rd national encampment of the organization in Sacramento, Calif., last September, was taken to the White by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, U. S. N. retired, now commander-in-chief of the organization.

It opposed cancellation of foreign debts, urged more strict enforcement of laws directing civil service preference for veterans, and said recommendations later would be made for improving veteran rehabilitation and hospitalization. It said in part:

"The 33rd national encampment, which respectfully urges your utmost consideration of pending legislation that would grant to the widows and orphans of World war veterans pension benefits on an equal basis with the widows and orphans of veterans of our previous wars and campaigns. There are approximately 70,000 widows and 105,000 orphans of World war veterans who are not receiving compensation or assistance in any form from the federal government."

"Our investigations reveal that at least 8 per cent of these widows and orphans are in serious need of financial assistance."

"The disability allowance act, passed by congress with the endorsement of the veterans administration, has accomplished tremendous results."

Indian Youth Is Killed by Train

Another Dying as Result of Ill-Fated Stolen Ride On Freight

Green Bay—(P)—One Menominee Indian youth is dead, another is dying, and a third is being held by authorities here as the tragic climax of a freight train "excursion."

The victims are William Marvin Tucker, 22, both legs severed, arms broken, injured—Leo Corn 22, right leg severed at hip, not expected to live.

William LaRock, 24, the third man, escaped injury. He is being detained as a witness pending further investigation.

According to LaRock the three had just received their per capita payments of $25 each from the government, and had planned a trip to Milwaukee. They boarded a south-bound Northwestern freight train at Keshena about midnight, and rode the car roofs for about two hours.

They became cold and attempted to make their way to the locomotive tank, and blinded by smoke, fell between two cars. LaRock managed to seize a grab-iron and hang on, but the other two went under the wheels.

Trooper Exonerated In Killing of Miner

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black today announced that Corporal Russell Myers of Peoria, had been "wholly exonerated and acquitted of responsibility" for the slaying of Andrew Cenis, striking miner, in Tovey Oct. 13 during the Christian-co coal field troubles.

The military board of inquiry, convened in Taylorville the day following the shooting, determined that Corp. Myers "used proper precaution and exercised good judgment in line of duty," General Black announced.

Corp. Myers shot Cenis in a neighborly yard when the miner resisted arrest upon complaint of working miner who accused Cenis of heckling and annoying him, officers announced. Myers has asked for a general court martial to clear his record, however, and General Black said his request would be granted.

Robber Trained by Watch He Dropped In Staging Holdup

Milwaukee—(P)—Traced from his home at Stratford, Wis., through a watch dropped at a holdup, Jess Weber, 19, was taken into custody here last night by Sheriff Simon Schamberger of Marathon-co., and local authorities.

Weber has confessed, the sheriff said, that he and an accomplice beat and robbed Julius J. Arnoldson, Stratford dance hall operator, last Friday night. His accomplice also was sought here.

During the holdup Weber dropped a watch which he stole from his stepfather, Harry Cole. Sheriff Schamberger said. The robbers obtained $25 from Haroldson. A photograph showed an

Seriously Ill

Bennett's wife recently underwent a successful abdominal operation and was recuperating in a hospital at the time her husband was stricken.

Liberated Felon Pleads Guilty of Killing Woman

Because of "Irresistible Impulse"

Columbus, O.—(P)—Twelve hours after he was arrested, John "Red" Downing, pardoned woman slayer, today pleaded guilty to slaying Mrs. Maureen M. Bonzo, wife of the record and parole clerk of the Ohio penitentiary.

Downing, the second released convict to be accused of murder in Ohio in less than a month, was bound over to the grand jury. He was apprehended last night a few hours after the body of Mrs. Bonzo, her head battered with bottles, was discovered in the basement of her home.

Police said he confessed killing the woman, who often had given him odd jobs around her home, because he had an irresistible impulse to kill.

"I don't know why I did it," police quoted him as saying. "She's been like a mother to me."

Less than a month ago, Francis "Mack" Bush, who had been paroled several months before, was shot by Herbert Quinlan, Cleveland jeweler, to death in an attempted holdup. Bush's companion, Norman Townsend, was slain by police in an ensuing gun battle. Bush, captured, is awaiting trial.

Gov. George White, who pardoned Downing, Oct. 6, 1931, after the latter served seven years of a life term for killing Mrs. Allan Williams, 38, in Cincinnati, today told his secretary here he would have no statement to make until he reviews the case.

Downing's pardon was recommended by W. M. Outcall, who prosecuted him in Cincinnati. The sentencing judge, Dennis J. Ryan, of Cincinnati, said he had refused to join recommendations for a parole and at the time questioned the governor's authority to grant the pardon.

Engineer and Fireman Killed in Train Wreck

Montauk, N. Y.—(P)—Scalded in the wreck of the "Cannonball express," fireman Edward Koehler died in a hospital today.

His was the second death to result from the wreck. Engineer Frank Obresinski died in his car when the train plunged down an embankment two miles west of here last night.

No passengers were aboard the train at the time of the wreck, which was reported due to spread rails. The conductor, two porters and two trainmen were bruised.

Fifteen Months in Russia

This is the ninth of ten articles by Ellen Moore Watt, daughter of Dr. L. H. Moore, Appleton, who spent fifteen months in Soviet Russia with her husband, James Watt, an American engineer engaged by the Soviet government to assist in development of the coal industry.

Recently a copy of a nicely turned-out magazine called the "Economic Review of the Soviet Union" found its way as far as the desk in our Chicago apartment. This is an unusual occurrence. The photographs, shown in that semi-monthly publication, of contented well-dressed Russians loling in the wicker chairs of the Moscow Cultural Park, and of gay peasants dancing playfully about a collective farm with garlands of flowers might prove ironically amusing from the standpoint of contrast to our mental pictures of the real Soviet Union. But from the angle of their effect upon the scores of credulous readers who absorb the accompanying articles on the accomplishments and benefits of the Soviet government, these magazines and all the enticing travel leaflets, exhibitions, books, moving pictures and lectures which constitute the world wide flood of communist propaganda are found to be wholly offensive.

However, this particular issue contained an article, marked by a friend, which was worth reading. It concerned the pleasures of crossing Siberia on the Trans-Siberian railway. A photograph showed an

Spanish Police Nab Suspect in Lindbergh Case

Anonymous Note Says
Man Seems "to Know Too
Much About Kidnaping"

MUM TO QUESTIONS

But First Admits Knowl- edge of Kidnaping and $50,000 Ransom

Seville, Spain—(P)—At the request of the American vice consul police today detained a man who gave his name as Jean Saul and arranged to send him to Madrid for questioning in connection with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

He was apprehended after the American consulate had received an anonymous note from two American sailors who said they had talked with Saul in a saloon here and that "he seemed to know enough about the Lindbergh kidnaping."

The vice consul asked the police to investigate and it was discovered that Saul's identification papers were incomplete. Police also said he made contradictory statements about his nationality, then declined to answer further questions, declaring he would tell nothing more "until I can face the American police where I can expect fairness."

At the consulate it was said that Saul speaks English with a heavy accent and it is suspected, therefore, that he is not an American. The name he gave the police, they said, probably is an alias.

Admits Knowledge

Detectives who questioned him said he had admitted he knew something about the kidnaping and the distribution of the $50,000 ransom paid for the child's return. The American vice consul attended the preliminary inquiry, but announced afterward he had withdrawn from the case and left it entirely in the hands of the police although he will forward a complete report to the embassy at Madrid.

This morning police said they had found an unfinished letter among Saul's belongings. It read: "Dear Bill—I'm afraid I've talked too much, but I hope I haven't compromised myself. You know how I am when I am drinking."

Police said Saul told them that friends in the French consulate at New York had helped him to obtain a French passport which he burned when he entered Spain so that the friends would not be compromised. Tags on his baggage showed he had been in Genoa, Nice, Toulouse and Barcelona. Labels of New York clothing houses were on his suits. Apparently he had only money he had was 600 pesetas—about $48.

Mouseries Continue To Operate Despite Citizens' Protests

Springfield, Mo.—(P)—William I. Wilson, disabled World war veteran, and H. B. Sutter didn't build a mouse trap to set people to making paths to their doors, but they did start raising white mice, and the city council has agreed to make complaints.

City officials, however, so far have tended to side with the propagators of white mice, and the business that started three years ago with only a few hundred mice has thrived until now there are approximately 60,000 of the small rodents in Springfield "mouseries," with Wilson and Sutter the leading operators.

The mice are sold to schools of medicine and laboratories for use in the study of cancer and other diseases, and in making vitamin and serum tests. About one in every 3,000 mice is a waltzer, and these sell from $2 to $3 each.

Objections to the "mouseries" still are being made by persons who maintain that unsanitary and service which may in some way be supplied for certain persons of particular note—but then you probably might have to say so.

The porters who bunched us into their deluxe international wagon that April day were the same type of unshaven, clumsy, well-meaning, khaki bloused attendants that had accompanied our commiseration of American engineers to Kharkov from the Polish border

Emergency Body Plans Additional Reduction In Wisconsin Budget

Wisconsin Cattle Put in Quarantine In New York State

Badgers Prepare to Start Legal Action to Have Shipment Released

Madison—(P)—A shipment of Wisconsin cattle to New York state, undertaken to test an embargo laid down by New York state officials, was placed in quarantine in southern New York Tuesday, Charles L. Hill, chairman of the state department of agriculture and markets, was informed today.

"Money will be made available by once to send R. M. Orchard, assistant attorney general detailed to our department, to New York to begin legal action to have the embargo lifted," Hill said.

He anticipated that two legal actions would be started, one in U. S. district court in Albany for an injunction to prevent New York officials maintaining the embargo and the other as a suit for damages against Mintz and Mintz, Appleton firm which shipped the cattle.

Wisconsin dairyman and state officials, meeting in Madison a week ago, made arrangements to raise at least $1,000 to fight the embargo, which went into effect Oct. 1.

The New York commissioner of markets placed the embargo against cattle from states which do not have all herds certified free from contagious abortion.

In a letter last week to Wisconsin officials, the counsel to the New York commissioner, stated that no embargo would have been laid had all cattle been as clean as those from Wisconsin.

Wisconsin officials do not believe the embargo can be maintained inasmuch as the Wisconsin shipment contained only healthy cattle and complied with all federal regulations.

Two Bank Bandits Elude Officials

Bloodhounds Lose Trail of Men Who Tried to Stage Mindoro Robbery

LaCrosse—(P)—Sheriffs' deputies concluded this noon that two of the four men who attempted to rob the State Bank of Mindoro yesterday have escaped from the wooded valley of the Black River, near Black River Falls. Two were wounded and captured yesterday in a running fight with officers of two counties.

Bloodhounds apparently followed confused trails in the valley. One dog led officers to a concrete highway. Another followed a scent to the banks of the river.

The officers theorized that the fugitives separated down the river, or obtained ride from a motorist. Both were believed to be heavily armed.

The prisoners held here, Charles Ross, 60, and William Roberts, 32, steadfastly refused today to tell about themselves. License plates of one of the automobiles in which the robbers entered Mindoro were stolen at Crookston, Minn., where last Friday four men made a raid on the Polk-co jail and escaped with rifles and a machine gun. Ross and Roberts would not discuss their recent movements, and LaCrosse officials were awaiting a report from Crookston authorities. Ross, according to records here, served a sentence in the Leavenworth penitentiary for a postoffice robbery.

Must Solve Problem of Transportation—Hoover

Philadelphia—(P)—President Hoover in a letter to be read to the Atlantic Deep Waterways association convention, which opens here tomorrow, says that "cut-throat competition" is not only injuring waterway traffic itself but it is damaging our other great arm of transportation, that is the railways.

"We must work out the problem of regulation of transportation by water," the president says, "because the cut-throat competition now going on in certain cases is making impossible the entry and maintenance of adequate services upon these channels."

The letter was dated yesterday and addressed to Mayor J. Hampton Moore, Philadelphia, president of the waterways association.

Lodi Boy Selected as Champion Hog Raiser

Madison—(P)—The distinction of being the junior champion hog raiser of Wisconsin was conferred upon Wayne Brown of Lodi at the Junior Livestock exposition at the University of Wisconsin yesterday.

In competition with hundreds of Wisconsin farm boys and girls, Wayne won the honors with his grand champion barrow and the champion pen of three. He also won 'op honors in the Chester White breed, both on single barrow and pen of three.

Soviet Is Far Short Of Five-Year Program

Moscow—(P)—With the end of the first five-year plan only a little more than two months off, official figures published today showed that Russia's industry as a whole accomplished less than half the increase planned for 1932, but still is running considerably ahead of last year.

The country's entire industrial production for the first eight months of this year, including heavy and light industries, timber and food industries, reached a combined average of 149 per cent above the same period of 1931, as compared with a scheduled increase of 36 per cent for the whole year of 1932.

Heavy industry had a gain of only 1.8 per cent, light industry increased 9.2 per cent and timber production 9.1 per cent.

Total production amounted to 18,931,500,000 rubles (nominally $94,657,500.)

Doak Describes Efforts Against Alien Racketeers

Declares Gang Levied Tribu- tute on Unsuspecting Foreign-Born

New York—(P)—Secretary Doak said today that while the labor department has been "vigorously attempting to enforce the immigration law," our most vigorous activities have been to apprehend and convict American citizens who are guilty of robbing the foreign born people."

Addressing the foreign language bureau of the Republican National committee, Doak said an investigation started soon after he took office "uncovered a gang of racketeers so bold they forged warrants of deportation."

"We discovered," he said, "not only out-of-the-service men working this racket but even some of those in the immigration service were levying tribute on the poor unsuspecting foreign-born people."

"We apprehended some of our employees who were accepting and demanding graft from these foreign-born people, and in no community were the offenses more grave than we found them in the city of New York."

Doak said he had been accused of "playing politics with humanity."

He continued:

"This was a vicious and malicious falsehood. I never considered the political angle of the situation and it certainly has never entered into my enforcement of the immigration laws. . . . All of my life has been spent in representing labor, a man who has fought for the underdog, if you please. How anyone could make a charge of playing politics with a human misery against me is beyond my comprehension."

"On the contrary, I hunted down these racketeers, these slave drivers, these damnable crooks who had been preying on our foreign-born under the guise of being their benefactors."

Father and Daughter End "Siege" at Hotel

Detroit—(P)—The three-day "siege" of the closed Franklin hotel, one of the city's oldest hostilities, by an 87-year-old former operator and his daughter ended today as the two emerged from their voluntary imprisonment in the building.

Henry H. James, 87, and his daughter, Sarah, had claimed the hotel, ordered closed by a trust company, could be re-organized and operated at a profit. When all guests had departed they were refused to leave food was brought to them, and Miss James, one of the owners, communicated with friends by means of a match-box on a string lowered from an upper window.

Today the trust company informed them they could come and go at will, following progress in their plans for re-organization.

Sen. Norris Recovering From Throat Infection

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, continued to gain today over the cold and throat infection which has kept him in a hospital since Monday.

He planned to leave Friday afternoon for Chicago and go from there to Seattle, Wash., for a speech Monday. His campaign tour for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt then will take him to Portland and Eugene, Ore., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Yale B. Huffman of Broken-bow, Neb., who accompanied the senator here, has been staying at the hospital with him.

STORM IN NEW ZEALAND

Aukland, N. Z.—(P)—A storm of great violence left a trail of destruction today many miles long and 300 miles wide through the Warkworth district. Buildings were wrecked, trees uprooted, and general havoc wrought across the countryside.

Slash Up to $1,000,000 Expected at Satur- day Meeting

SAVINGS IN REPAIRS Cut Necessary to Stay Under $2,000,000 Minimum Fund

Madison—(P)—The state emergency board will meet at the capitol Saturday to consider another cut in the state budget as a means of insuring that the balances in the general fund will not fall below $2,000,000 in any month of the next calendar year.

Holy Cross in 19-0 Victory Over St. Mary

Winning Eleven Scores Touchdowns in 1st, 2nd, 4th Quarters

Kaukauna—Holy Cross Catholic parochial school gridders reigned as champs of the parochial schools in the city when they trampled over St. Mary's Catholic school eleven, 19 to 0, on Holy Cross field Monday evening. In the last meeting the teams had played to a scoreless tie.

The Holy Cross team scored in the first, second, and fourth quarters. Holy Cross scoring was opened shortly after the kickoff, when Schuh carried the ball 40 yards on spinner plays to the St. Mary 20 yard line. Promer went the remaining distance to score on an end run. A pass was unsuccessful for the point after touchdown. In the second quarter the Holy Cross team scored again after a 50 yard march and a 15 yard penalty that placed the ball on the St. Mary five yard line, where Promer scored on a plunge. Driessen passed to Vanevenhoven for the point, leaving the St. Mary team trailing 13 to 0 at halftime.

In the third quarter the teams played an even brand of ball, but in the fourth the St. Mary team weakened to allow the Holy Cross gridders another marker. Henry Kuchelmeister broke away for a 35 yard run to place the ball on St. Mary's four yard line, with Driessen scoring on the last down. A pass for the point was unsuccessful.

Included in the Holy Cross lineup was Senso and Vanevenhoven, ends, Drager and Romanesko, tackles, DeBruin and W. Jansen, guards, L. Jansen, center, Driessen, fullback, Schuh and Promer, halfbacks, and H. Kuchelmeister, quarterback. Substitutions were C. Kuchelmeister, and Franz.

Conduct Last Rites For Morris Brouillard

Kaukauna—Funeral services for Morris Brouillard, 90, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Felix Lemere, Maloney-rd, Saturday evening following a week's illness, were held at 9 o'clock this morning in Holy Cross Catholic church with the Rev. A. Garthaus in charge. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

Pall bearers were John Vanevenhoven, George Besaw, William Baruth, Henry Hurkman, Richard Wurdinger, and Peter Weyenberg.

Mr. Brouillard was born in the town of Buchanan and had spent his life in this vicinity. In his youth he had worked in logging camps. He was employed several years as a caretaker in the Kaukauna city park until his retirement four years ago.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Felix Lemere, Kaukauna, and Mrs. Louise St. Louis, Matoon.

Student Cuts Expenses By Living in Rude Hut

Kaukauna—Lack of sufficient funds to attend school this year did not stop Gordon Smith, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Royalton from enrolling in the Outagamie-co Rural Normal school here. Smith utilized the little money he had to build a small hut in which he will live during the school year.

His father, a carpenter, built a little frame one-room house, six by 12 feet, and the shack has been set up on a site several blocks from the school building. The building is constructed of wooden framework and pressed-wood siding. It cost nearly $100. It contains space for a bed, table, two chairs, a desk, and a stove. The youth will live in the hut during the school term and will cook his own meals and do the housework.

By carrying out his plan he hopes to save enough to keep him in school. The lot on which the hut has been erected has been loaned to him for the school term by John D. Lawe, Kaukauna's oldest resident.

Gordon's plan of living while at the Normal school has received favorable comment from Walter P. Hagman, school principal.

Gordon is a graduate of Manawa high school and entered the Normal school here in September. When the school term is completed next June he hopes to sell the hut and realize some of the money spent in constructing it. His daily routine includes rising at 6 o'clock in the morning, preparing breakfast, and going to school. He is due at the school at 8 o'clock and spends the remainder of the morning in classes.

At noon he returns to the hut and prepares his dinner. Cleaning up the dinner dishes and the home, he returns to school to spend several hours in classes. At 4 o'clock he returns home and spends the remainder of the afternoon studying and working about the building. He will spend the next few weeks gathering firewood for the winter.

Football Captain Found Ineligible

William Kuchelmeister Is Above Age Limit, Investigation Shows

Kaukauna—Like a bolt out of a blue sky came the discovery Monday by school officials that William Kuchelmeister, captain of the high school football team, was more than 20 years of age, the limit set by the rules of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association. An investigation of official records revealed that Kuchelmeister had been 20 years of age on Aug. 13 of this year. An irregularity in the records of the Kuchelmeister family kept the youth and family in ignorance of the birth date recorded officially.

With the announcement of school officials Monday, the high school's chances of copping the Northeastern Wisconsin conference title became remote. It is possible that the team will have to forfeit its record of five victories, leaving East De Pere high school in undisputed possession of first place in the conference standings. The investigation of Kuchelmeister's age came Monday when rumors of a probe by another team became prevalent.

Monday evening the squad held a practice session without Kuchelmeister. Mankosky took the vacated position in the backfield. Signal drills constituted the practice session and the squad was sent in after a talk by Coach Paul E. Little. Kuchelmeister would not have appeared in any more games this season because of an injured hand. The Kaws meet Neenah high school gridders Saturday and Appleton on Nov. 11. Vils, an end who has been out with injuries received in an auto accident, was present at the Monday session.

A large clam in the South Seas, the Pahuia, can clamp and hold a human prisoner until death.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Royal Neighbors of America lodge will hold a Halloween party in Odd Fellows clubrooms this evening.

Holy Name society of Holy Cross Catholic church will hold a public card party in the church basement Wednesday evening, Nov. 2. Prizes will be offered and a lunch served.

St. Therese Sodality of St. Mary's Catholic church held a Halloween party in the church annex Monday evening. Prizes were offered for the best costumes.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE BLACK PANTHER

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom... inspired by the natural ferocity of "Bagheera," the black panther in the famous "Jungle Book." "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are

For First Time

Montana Senator Asks
Freedom for "Victims Of Judicial Tyranny"

New York.—(P)—The report of a sub-committee of the Wickersham commission dealing with the Billings-Mooney bombing case was published today with an introduction in which Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, expressed the hope that its publication would "aid in freeing these victims of judicial tyranny and wiping from our national escutcheon this ugly stain."

The authors of the sub-committee report on "lawlessness in law enforcement," which included the report on the Billings-Mooney case, were Dr. Zachariah Chaffee, Jr., of Harvard Law school, Carl Stern and Walter Pollack. The sub-committee was headed by Federal Judge W. S. Kenyon of Iowa.

"When the Kenyon report appeared on Aug. 10, 1932," Senator Wheeler wrote in the introduction, "this portion of the experts' work had been, so far as the public was concerned, suppressed."

"It should have been, I think, printed with the original Wickersham report."

After a lengthy review of the case the report ends with the following conclusions:

"1.—There was never any scientific attempt made by either the police or the prosecution to discover the perpetrators of the crime. The investigation was in reality turned over to a private detective, who used his position to cause the arrest of the defendants. The police investigation was reduced to a hunt for evidence to convict the arrested defendants."

"2.—There were flagrant violations of the statutory law of California by both the police and the prosecution in the manner in which the defendants were arrested and held incommunicado, and in the subsequent searches of their homes to procure evidence against them."

"3.—After the arrest of the defendants, witnesses were brought to the jails to identify them, and their identifications were accepted by the police and the prosecution, despite the fact that these witnesses were never required to pick the defendants out of a line up, or to demonstrate their accuracy by any other test."

"4.—Immediately after the arrests of the defendants there commenced a deliberate attempt to arouse public prejudice against them, by a series of almost daily interviews given to the press by prosecuting officials."

"5.—Witnesses were produced at the trials with information in the hands of the prosecution that seriously challenged the credibility of the witnesses, but this information was deliberately concealed."

"6.—Witnesses were permitted to testify at the trials, despite such knowledge in the possession of the prosecution of prior contradictory stories told by the witnesses, as to make their mere production a vouching for perjured testimony."

"7.—Witnesses were coached in their testimony to a degree that approximated subordination of personality. There is a strong inference that some of this coaching was done by prosecuting officials, and other evidence points to knowledge by the prosecuting officials that such coaching was being practiced on other witnesses."

"8.—The prejudice against the defendants, stimulated by newspaper publicity, was further appealed to act at the trials by unfair and intemperate arguments to the jury in the opening and closing statements of the prosecuting attorneys."

"9.—After the trials, the disclosures casting doubt on the justice of the convictions were minimized, and every attempt made to defeat the liberation of the defendants by a campaign of misrepresentation and propaganda carried on by the officials who had prosecuted them."

PREMIER OTTO BRAUN

Prussian Premier
For Cooperation
With Federal Body

Will Work "With Other Responsible Authorities
Wherever Possible"

Berlin.—(P)—Premier Otto Braun of Prussia, recognized yesterday by the supreme court as the constitutional head of the Prussian state, indicated today after a cabinet meeting that he is willing to cooperate with the federal authorities who took over administration of Prussia last July.

The supreme court decision which recognized Braun's authority also accepted the constitutionality of the replacement by the federal chancellor of the Prussian ministry, justifying the act by the existence at the time of widespread political unrest in Prussia.

Premier Braun's statement issued this afternoon read:

"It is the unanimous view of the Prussian ministry that the decision of the supreme court is an authoritative and proper basis for discharging this situation. Accordingly, the ministry has not only the right but the duty to exercise the functions left to it by the court's decision."

"The state government will exercise them by cooperation with other responsible authorities wherever possible, and will be guided solely by the interests of the state and the nation."

Number of Brief
Talks, Hoover Plan

President to Make Series Of Brief Stops on Indianapolis Trip

Washington.—(P)—President Hoover arranged today to make a number of brief talks enroute to and from his fourth major political speech in the midwest, to be delivered in Indianapolis Friday night.

Addressing his desk in the executive office, he decided on this program in the Lincoln study of the White House, where he sequestered himself much of the day at work on the addresses.

Mr. Hoover today also gave thought to brief speeches he will deliver in Philadelphia and probably in Wilmington, Del., next Monday, while enroute to Kentucky speeches in Newark, N. J., during the same afternoon and another in New York that night.

Plans for his first eastern campaign trip have not been completed, nor has he settled upon his schedule after Monday. Indications have been given, however, that he plans to spend a considerable part of his time up to election in railroad travel.

With Mrs. Hoover, the president will leave the national capital Tuesday night at 11 p. m., for Indianapolis.

Postal Receipts for
3 Months Show Decline

Washington.—(P)—The postoffice department has reported to Chairman Mead of the house postal committee, that although receipts from 50 cities for the three months ending September were less than last year, they indicated the higher postal rates actually brought in additional revenue over what might have been raised otherwise.

Harold N. Graves, executive assistant to the postmaster general, in a letter to Mead, reported that receipts from "fifty selected offices" for the September quarter 1932 were $73,410,579 as compared with $74,301,583 in the similar period of 1931, and $81,400,987 in 1930.

Washington.—(P)—Immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus, the enactment of legislation granting pensions to widows and orphans of World War veterans and preservation of disability allowances for veterans were recommended to President Hoover today by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The appeal, conveying actions taken by the 33rd national encampment of the organization in Sacramento, Calif., last September, was taken to the White by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, U. S. N. retired, now commander-in-chief of the organization.

It opposed cancellation of foreign debts, urged more strict enforcement of laws directing civil service preference for veterans, and said recommendations later would be made for improving veteran rehabilitation and hospitalization. It said in part:

Indian Youth Is Killed by Train

Ill-Fated Stolen Ride
On Freight

Green Bay.—(P)—One Menominee Indian youth is dead, another is dying, and a third is being held by authorities here as the tragic climax of a freight train "excursion."

The victims are: Dead—William Marvin Tucker, 22; both legs severed, arms broken. Injured—Leo Corn 22, right leg severed at hip, not expected to live.

William LaRock, 24, the third man, escaped injury. He is being held as a witness pending further investigation.

According to LaRock the three had just received their per capita payments of $25 each from the government, and had planned a trip to Milwaukee. They boarded a south bound Northwestern freight train at Keshena about midnight, and rode the car roofs for about two hours.

They became cold and attempted to make their way to the locomotive tank, and, blinded by smoke, fell between two cars. LaRock managed to seize a grab-iron and hang on, but the other two went under the wheels.

Trooper Exonerated
In Killing of Miner

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black today announced that Corporal Russell Myers of Peoria had been "wholly exonerated and acquitted of responsibility" for the slaying of Andrew Ganis, striking miner, in Tovey Oct. 13 during the Christian-coal field troubles.

The military board of inquiry, convened in Taylorville the day following the shooting, determined that Corp. Myers used proper precaution and exercised good judgment in line of duty," General Black announced.

Seriously Ill

Bennett's wife recently underwent a successful abdominal operation and was recuperating in a hospital at the time her husband was stricken.

Liberated Felon
Pleads Guilty of Killing Woman

Because of "Irresist-
ible Impulse"

Columbus, O.—(P)—Twelve hours after he was arrested, John "Red" Downing, pardoned woman slayer, today pleaded guilty to slaying Mrs. Mauree M. Bonzo, wife of the record and parole clerk of the Ohio penitentiary.

Downing, the second released convict to be accused of murder in Ohio in less than a month, was bound over to the grand jury. He was apprehended last night a few hours after the body of Mrs. Bonzo, her head battered with bottles, was discovered in the basement of her home.

Police said he confessed killing the woman, who often had given him odd jobs around her home, because he had an irresistible impulse to kill.

"I don't know why I did it," police quoted him as saying. "She's been like a mother to me."

Less than a month ago, Francis "Mack" Bush, who had been paroled several months before, from the Ohio penitentiary, allegedly shot Herbert Quinlan, Cleveland jeweler, to death in an attempted holdup. Bush's companion, Norman Townsend, was slain by police in an ensuing gun battle. Bush, captured in awaiting trial.

Gov. George White, who pardoned Downing, Oct. 6, 1931, after the latter served seven years of a life term for killing Mrs. Allan Williams, 38, in Cincinnati, today told his secretary he would have no statement to make until he reviews the case.

Downing's pardon was recommended by W. M. Outcalt, who prosecuted him in Cincinnati. The sentencing judge, Dennis J. Ryan, of Cincinnati, said he had refused to join recommendations for a parole and at the time questioned the governor's authority to grant the pardon.

Engineer and Fireman
Killed in Train Wreck

Montank, N. Y.—(P)—Scalded in the wreck of the "Cannibal" express, a crack Long Island railroad train, Fireman Edward Koehler died in a hospital today.

His was the second death to result from the wreck. Engineer Frank Obresinski died in his car, when the train plunged down an embankment two miles west of here last night.

No passengers were aboard the train at the time of the wreck, which was reported due to spread rails. The conductor, two porters and two trainmen were bruised.

They became cold and attempted to make their way to the locomotive tank, and, blinded by smoke, fell between two cars. LaRock managed to seize a grab-iron and hang on, but the other two went under the wheels.

Spanish Police
Nab Suspect in Lindbergh Case

Anonymous Note Says
Man Seems "to Know Too

MUM TO QUESTIONS

But First Admits Knowledge of Kidnaping and
$50,000 Ransom

Seville, Spain.—(P)—At the request of the American vice consul, police today detained a man who gave his name as Jean Saul and arranged to send him to Madrid for questioning in connection with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

He was apprehended after the American consulate had received an anonymous note from two American sailors who said they had talked with Saul in a saloon here and that "he seemed to know entirely too much about the Lindbergh kidnaping."

The vice consul asked the police to investigate and it was discovered that Saul's identification papers were incomplete. Police also said he made contradictory statements about his nationality, then declined to answer further questions, declaring he would tell nothing more "until I can face the American police where I can expect fairness."

At the consulate it was said that Saul speaks English with a heavy accent and it is suspected, therefore, that he is not an American. The name he gave the police, they said, probably is an alias.

Admits Knowledge
Detectives who questioned him said he had admitted he knew something about the kidnaping and the distribution of the $50,000 ransom paid for the child's return. The American vice consul attended the preliminary inquiry, but announced afterward he had withdrawn from the case and left it entirely in the hands of the police although he will forward a complete report to the embassy at Madrid.

This morning police said they had found an unfinished letter among Saul's belongings. It read: "Dear Bill—I'm afraid I've talked too much, but I hope I haven't compromised myself. You know how I am when I'm drinking."

Police said Saul told them that friends in the French consulate at New York had helped him to obtain a French passport which he burned when he entered Spain so that the friends would not be compromised. Tags on his baggage showed he had been in Genoa, Nice, Toulouse and Barcelona. Labels of New York clothing houses were on his suits. Apparently the only money he had was 600 pesetas—about $48.

Mouseries Continue To Operate Despite Citizens' Protests

Springfield, Mo.—(P)—William I. Wilson, disabled World War veteran, and H. B. Sutter, didn't build a mouse trap to set people to making paths to their doors, but they did start raising white mice, and this sent people to the city council to make complaints.

City officials, however, so far have tended to side with the propagators of white mice, and the business that started three years ago with only a few hundred mice has thrived into now there are approximately 60,000 of the small rodents in Springfield "mouseries" with Wilson and Sutter the leading operators.

The mice are sold to schools of medicine and laboratories for use in the study of cancer and other diseases, and in making vitamin and serum tests. About one in every 3,000 mice is a waiter, and these sell from $2 to $3 each.

Objections to the "mouseries" still are being made by persons who maintain they are unsanitary and have no place in a residential district. The mice raisers apparently triumphed, however.

Fifteen Months in Russia

This is the ninth of ten articles by Ellen Moore Watt, daughter of Dr. L. H. Moore, Appleton, who spent fifteen months in Soviet Russia with her husband, James Watt, an American engineer engaged by the Soviet government to assist in development of the coal industry.

Recently a copy of a nicely turned out magazine called the "Economic Review of the Soviet Union" found its way as far as the desk in our Chicago apartment. This is an unusual occurrence. This is a magazine of contrast to the semi-monthly publication of contented well-dressed Russians lolling in the wicker chairs of the Moscow Cultural Park, and of gay peasants dancing playfully about a collective farm with garlands of flowers might prove ironically amusing from the standpoint of contrast to our mental pictures of the real Soviet Union. But from the angle of their effect upon the scores of credulous readers who absorb the accompanying articles on the accomplishments and benefits of the Soviet government, these magazines and all the enticing travel leaflets, exhibitions, books, moving pictures and lectures which constitute the world wide flood of communist propaganda are found to be wholly offensive.

However, this particular issue contained an article, marked by a friend, which was worth reading. It concerned the pleasures of crossing Siberia on the Trans-Siberian railway. A photograph showed an immaculately groomed porter in spotless white standing rigidly at attention on the back platform. The Deluxe Express was temptingly described as a crack train with seraphic, shaven attendants, the best in Europe. To quote from the paragraphs would send travelers to rummage in their safety boxes for the means with which to buy a ticket.

Wisconsin Cattle
Put in Quarantine
In New York State

Badgers Prepare to Start
Legal Action to Have Shipment Released

Madison.—(P)—A shipment of Wisconsin cattle to New York state, undertaken to test an embargo laid down by New York state officials, was placed in quarantine in southern New York Tuesday, Charles L. Hill, chairman of the state department of agriculture and markets, was informed today.

"Money will be made available by once to send R. M. Orchard, assistant attorney general detailed to our department, to New York to begin legal action to have the embargo lifted," Hill said.

He anticipated that two legal actions would be started, one in U. S. district court in Albany for an injunction to prevent New York officials maintaining the embargo and the other as a suit for damages against Mintz and Mintz, Appleton firm which shipped the cattle.

Wisconsin dairymen and state officials, meeting in Madison a week ago, made arrangements to raise at least $1,000 to fight the embargo, which went into effect Oct. 1.

The New York commissioner of markets placed the embargo against cattle from states which do not have a health certificate free from contagious abortion.

In a letter last week to Wisconsin officials, the counsel to the New York commissioner, stated that no embargo would have been laid had all cattle been as clean as those from Wisconsin.

Wisconsin officials do not believe the embargo can be maintained inasmuch as the Wisconsin shipment contained only healthy cattle and complied with all federal regulations.

Two Bank Bandits
Elude Officials

Bloodhounds Lose Trail of Men Who Tried to Stage
Mindoro Robbery

LaCrosse.—(P)—Sheriffs deputies concluded this noon that two of the four men who attempted to rob the State Bank of Mindoro yesterday have escaped from the wooded valley of the Black river, near Black River Falls. Two were wounded and captured yesterday in a running fight with officers of two counties.

Bloodhounds apparently followed confused trails in the valley. One dog led officers to a concrete highway. Another followed a scent to the banks of the river.

The officers theorized that the fugitives separated, swam the river, or obtained a ride from a motorist. Both were believed to be heavily armed.

The prisoners held here, Charles Ross, 60, and William Roberts, 32, steadily refused today to tell about themselves. License plates of one of the automobiles in which the robbers entered Mindoro were stolen at Crookston, Minn., where last Friday four men made a raid on the Polk-co jail and escaped with rifles and a machine gun. Ross and Roberts would not discuss their recent movements, and LaCrosse officials were awaiting a report from Crookston authorities. Ross, according to records here, served a sentence in the Leavenworth penitentiary for a postoffice robbery.

Must Solve Problem of Transportation—Hoover

Philadelphia.—(P)—President Hoover in a letter to be read to the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways association convention, which opens here tomorrow, says that "cut-throat competition is not only injuring waterway traffic itself but is damaging our other great arm of transportation, that is the railways."

"We must work out the problem of regulation of transportation by water," the president says, "because the cut-throat competition now going on in certain cases is making impossible the entry and maintenance of adequate services upon these channels."

The letter was dated yesterday and addressed to Mayor J. Hampton Moore, Philadelphia, president of the waterways association.

Soviet Is Far Short Of Five-Year Program

Moscow.—(P)—With the end of the first five-year plan only a little more than two months off, official figures published today showed that Russia's industry as a whole accomplished less than half the increase planned for 1932, but still is running considerably ahead of last year.

The country's entire industrial production for the first eight months of this year, including heavy and light industries, timber and food industries, reached a combined average of 149 per cent above the same period of 1931, as compared with a scheduled increase of 36 per cent for the whole year of 1932.

Heavy industry had a gain of only 1.8 per cent, light industry increased 92 per cent and lumber production 9.1 per cent.

Total production amounted to 16,931,500,000 rubles (nominally $94,657,500.)

Doak Describes Efforts Against Alien Racketeers

Declares Gang Levied Tribute on Unsuspecting
Foreign-Born

New York.—(P)—Secretary Doak said today that while the labor department has been "vigorously attempting to enforce the immigration law . . . our most vigorous activities have been to apprehend and convict American citizens who are guilty of robbing the foreign born people."

Addressing the foreign language bureau of the Republican National committee, Doak said an investigation started soon after he took office "uncovered a gang of racketeers so bold they forged warrants of deportation."

"We discovered," he said, "not only out-of-the-service men working this racket but even some of those in the immigration service were levying tribute on the poor unsuspecting foreign-born people here. . . . We apprehended some of our employees who were accepting and demanding graft from these foreign-born people, and in no community were the offenses more grave than we found them in the city of New York."

Doak said he had been accused of "un-American politics with humanity."

He continued:

"This was a vicious and malicious falsehood. . . . I never considered the political angle of the situation and it certainly has never entered into my enforcement of the immigration laws. . . . All of my life has been spent in representing law-abiding men who have fought for the underdog, if you please. How any one could make a charge of playing politics with human misery against me is beyond my comprehension."

"On the contrary, I hunted down these racketeers, these slave drivers, these damnable crooks who had been preying on our foreign-born under the guise of being their benefactors."

Father and Daughter
End "Siege" at Hotel

Detroit.—(P)—The three-day "siege" of the closed Franklin hotel, one of the city's oldest hostels, by an 87-year-old former operator and his daughter ended today as the two emerged from their voluntary imprisonment in the building.

Henry H. James, 87, and his daughter, Sarah, had claimed the hotel, ordered closed by a trust company, could be re-organized and operated at a profit. When all guests were ordered out, they refused to leave. Food was brought to them, and Miss James, one of the owners, communicated with friends by means of a match-box on a string lowered from an upper window.

Today the trust company informed them they could come and go at will, following progress in their plans for re-organization.

Sen. Norris Recovering
From Throat Infection

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, continued to gain today over the cold and throat infection which has kept him in a hospital since Monday.

He planned to leave Friday afternoon for Chicago and go from there to Seattle, Wash. for a speech Monday. His campaign tour for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt then will take him to Portland and Eugene, Ore., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Yale B. Huffman of Broken-bow, Neb., who accompanied the senator here, has been staying at the hospital with him.

STORM IN NEW ZEALAND

Auckland, N. Z.—(P)—A storm of great violence left a trail of destruction today many miles long and 300 miles wide through the Warkworth district. Buildings were wrecked, trees uprooted, and general havoc wrought across the countryside.

SAVINGS IN REPAIRS
Cut Necessary to Stay
Under $2,000,000
Minimum Fund

Madison.—(P)—The state emergency board will meet at the capitol Saturday to consider another cut in the state budget as a means of insuring that the balances in the general fund will not fall below $2,000,000 in any month of the next calendar year.

In the absence of a state property tax, which Governor LaFollette has announced will not be levied this year, the monthly balances in 1932 must be maintained at $2,000,000 or more.

It is expected that the budget for the remainder of the fiscal year, ending next July will be cut from $750,000 to $1,000,000 by savings in the maintenance and capital appropriations allowed the various departments and institutions by the last legislature.

Heads of departments and institutions have been asked to appear before the emergency board to assist in making the reductions. The items to be cut are only those for improvements and repair. Operating funds, including salaries, were revised in the $3,000,000 budget reduction ordered by the emergency board last winter.

"The departments have only a few months of the fiscal year remaining and it can be told definitely just what savings can be made in the maintenance and capital funds," Senator Thomas M. Duncan, secretary of Governor LaFollette, said. "It is necessary to determine how you are coming out at the end of the present fiscal year before accurate estimates can be made for the next year."

$2,000,000 Minimum
It is on the basis of future estimates that the Duncan budget law, enacted in 1931, requires a determination by the governor whether a state property tax is needed. This law allows a minimum monthly balance of $2,000,000 to avert a property tax.

Balances accruing from previous years when specific mill taxes on property for the common schools, the university and the normal schools were levied provided ample funds to avoid the levying of a property tax last year. These mill taxes were repealed by the Duncan law.

State expenditure for the common schools, university and normal schools have been financed during this fiscal biennium out of old balances. How nearly the $2,000,000 monthly minimum has not yet been announced.

Definite figures probably will be made public after the emergency board makes further revision of the budget. If another million is cut off, the total budget reduction this year will be about $4,000,000.

Prohibition Officers
Arrest 2 Near Oshkosh

Milwaukee.—(P)—John Carney and Gilbert Ryner, arrested by prohibition agents in a place on route 3, Oshkosh, last night, were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins here today. Bond was fixed at $500 each and preliminary examination set for Nov. 2. Agents seized a boiler, vats, pumps and other still equipment, but found no alcohol.

Two Hurt at New York
Political Gathering

New York.—(P)—An assailant who injured two by dropping a baby carriage and a brick into an open air political meeting sponsored by supporters of Rep. Fiorello H. LaGuardia was hunted by police today.

Isaac Hazen, 42, suffered a possible skull fracture when the carriage hit him. A brick fractured the shoulder of Mary Saylor, 29.

Farmers Substitute Three-Year Contract for Five-Year Plan

Adoption of a three-year contract in place of the five-year contract with life memberships costing $1 instead of $3, all money to be retained by the local, and approval of the budget plan proposed by the state department in the operation of various locals, were the high lights of the annual convention of the Pure Milk Products Cooperative Tuesday at New London.

There were many clashes of opinion during the day, one being over the question of the manner in which state expenses should be budgeted. The opinions differed mainly as to what proportion of money raised through the monthly 2-cent levy per 100 pounds of milk should remain in the local unit.

The matter finally was tabled. Dissension arose at this point, some maintaining that a revolving fund should be built up in the state treasury so that in time of trouble or need each local could receive aid, while others thought it best to keep all money in the local, each therefore becoming independent and able to handle its own troubles.

The election of officers and directors took place. Thomas O'Connor, Clintonville, was re-elected state president; J. B. Nickols, Walworth, treasurer, and J. C. Hoesly, Monticello, secretary. Sixteen directors, representing the various locals of the state, were present. They included Andrew Goetsch, Random Lake; Fred Wild Belleville; Fred Smoody, Poyssippi; Thomas O'Connor, Clintonville; L. W. Swan, Elkhorn; Theodore Dimka, Junction City; Clarence W. Miller, Merrill; Henry Y. Lemcke, Middleton; J. C. Hoesly, Monticello; Herman C. Stichtman, New London; R. C. Schultz, Black Creek; Harvey Wainish Boyd, J. V. Nichols, Walworth; and Alvin M. Anderson, Whitewater.

Mayor Welcomes Men
More than 150 attended the convention, which opened at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with registration. Mayor E. W. Wendlandt of New London welcomed the visitors, and a response was made by L. W. Swan of Elkhorn. President Thomas O'Connor, Clintonville, pointed out the various efforts which have been made locally and throughout the state.

Henry Y. Lemcke, Middleton, secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, and the treasurer's report was submitted by J. V. Nichols of Walworth. During the noon recess cars were provided by the chamber of commerce. The afternoon session included reports of the by-laws committee and an explanation of the by-laws by R. M. Orchard, reports of the resolution committee, election of directors the concluding address by Wilbur L. Witte, of the state department of markets, and a discussion of the budget plan by L. W. Swan.

Addresses during the day were given by R. K. Froker of the state department, who stressed the necessity of building up a reserve for local and state uses. He also discussed the business end of the cooperative organization. Wilbur Witte dwelt particularly upon the local perfection of the checking of tests and weights, and advised his listeners not to neglect the bargaining end of the cooperative scheme. Bargaining power does exist, he said, and he strongly advised merchandising, which would include advertisement of brands and grades. Success in this cannot be gained by an individual, said Mr. Witte, but it may become a success through the operations of a group. The speaker also stressed the need of banding together all kindred organizations, stating that were all organizations working, much could be accomplished.

Dinner Program
A dinner program concluded the day's session at New London high school. J. J. Burns, toastmaster, introduced W. T. Comstock, president of the chamber, Carl W. Mason, New London; Frank Flanagan, Bear Creek, and R. M. Orchard, Madison.

Mr. Orchard pointed out the change of attitude between farmers and professional men. His talk touched upon his work in safeguarding the affairs of the Pure Milk Products Cooperative and the magnitude of the task encountered as the work of organization in communities goes forward. He said that as soon as Cooperative units begin to organize, an antagonistic feeling from some other faction is sure to

Silences Hoodlums In Theatre, Then Goes to Hospital

Minneapolis — (P) — Chivalry, reflected Robert McCullough of Minneapolis, from his hospital bed today, isn't all that it's cracked up to be. He went to a theatre and a group of youths behind him talked and generally made a nuisance of themselves. "Their language," said McCullough, "wasn't the kind to use when ladies were present. So I told them to shut up."

They did, but they also met McCullough outside after the show. In the ensuing battle, McCullough received a possible fracture of the jaw. He is a student at the University of Minnesota and was taken to the student health service for treatment.

Take Inventory of Guard Equipment

The annual inventory of property belonging to Co. D., 127th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, will be made Wednesday evening by an officer from the United States Purchasing and Distributing Office at Camp Williams, Camp Douglas. The officer is visiting several companies in the Fox river valley this week. All clothing and equipment is checked against the inventory list and deficiencies are charged against the company commander.

Koch, Scholl Machines Damaged in Collision

Two automobiles were slightly damaged about 5:30 Tuesday afternoon when they collided at the intersection of S. State and W. Sixth. A car driven by Dr. A. L. Koch was going west on Sixth-st, and another machine was going south on State-st when the crash occurred. The right front fender and headlight on the Koch car was damaged, and the front part of the Scholl machine was dented.

appear. It is these problems which must be ironed out, he said.

He advised the use of tact and understanding as organization and operation goes on. Every individual from the trucker to the condenser has his problems. Find out what these are he advised, and try to see more than one viewpoint. He further advised each member to subscribe to stock in a credit union to be used for borrowing in time of distress. Government aid, he asserted, can often be obtained only through the unwinding of much red tape.

This point was illustrated by the recent call for aid from farmers from a community with no funds and no feed for their cattle," he said. "We approached the government officials from all angles, but without much delay, we could get no aid. A reserve in every local for such purposes would be of great assistance. This manner is current in California and is available in Wisconsin."

L. G. Kuenning stated that the first step in perfect cooperative organization is in setting up some machinery of common information. The member who is well informed Mr. Kuenning said, is a contented member. He advised the publishing of some form of bulletin, and the circulation of letters.

Dinner was served at the American Legion hall at 7 o'clock. Features of entertainment besides the speakers present included the introduction of Tony Budwit, who with Curtis Rogers, presented a sketch. Robert Hardt entertained with chalk drawings, and Robert Pfeifer offered some magical tricks. Delegates were present from Clintonville, Merrill, Middleton, Stanley, Whitewater, Belleville, Black Creek, Junction City, Berlin, Random Lake, New Glarus, Elkhorn, Nichols, Adell, Madison, Fond du Lac, Waldo, Shiocton, Walworth, Weyauwega, Royalton, Green Lake, Manawa and Appleton.

Council Opposes Emotional Appeals Made to Farmers

Attempts to Arouse Mob Action Scored by State Body

Action has been taken by the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture condemning attempts to better farmers' conditions "by emotional appeal, arousing farmers to a dangerous mood or mob action," it has been announced by the state department of agriculture and markets. Many Outagamie-co cooperative organizations are affiliated through their state bodies with the state council.

The council, composed of 21 of the state's largest farm groups, has proposed that the department make arrangements between debtors and creditors to discourage foreclosures and provide for long-term payments at lower rates of interest, it was announced.

A resolution adopted by the council at a recent meeting advised that the department, with endorsement of the governor and the council, call "debt adjustment" conferences to find means of restoring confidence between creditors and debtors and "to avoid throwing property on a market below normal value."

Wisconsin farmers "are confused because of the various plans and programs proposed to handle the desperate condition in which agriculture finds itself," the resolution stated.

"Be it resolved," the resolution continued, "that we declare ourselves favorable to a sane and sensible program of education for our members, bringing out the thought and facts that if we wish to better the condition of the farmer, it must be done, not by emotional appeal arousing farmers to a dangerous mood or mob action, but by sound principles of organization and cooperation which are equality and justice, and which experience has shown that in the long run will prevail and will be the only solution for the farmer."

Prof. and Mrs. A. Dede and children and Roland Ehke, Milwaukee, were weekend visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ehke.

Start Social Work Classes on Nov. 1

Miss Edith Foster, Milwaukee, Will Conduct Opening Sessions

Classes for volunteer social workers, sponsored by the Civic Council, will begin Tuesday evening, Nov. 1, it was announced today by Mrs. L. C. Sleeper, chairman of the committee directing the program.

Miss Edith Foster, assistant secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Workers, will conduct "the classes for a few weeks because Aubrey Williams, secretary of the conference, has been detained in Washington, D. C. on work for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Evansville, Ind.—The fire department had an emergency call from Homer Handlit. His daughter was missing, he said, and he feared she had fallen down a well. Firemen rushed to his house and looked in the well without finding the girl. Finally one of them discovered her sleeping under the house.

Women's Home Mission Group Here Thursday

Sessions for Two-Day Convention to be Held at Methodist Church

Exhibits of various kinds will play an important part in the convention of Women's Home Missionary society of the Wisconsin church which meets in Appleton Thursday and Friday at the Methodist church. These exhibits will be interdenominational and of interest to all women whether members of the Methodist church or not.

An exhibit from the Cincinnati office headquarters of Women's Home Missionary society will be on display in the junior room of the church. It will contain material for all branches of the society including the young women's group, children's group and the Auxiliary. It is said Mrs. Edith Wright is local chairman of this display. The conference literature secretary will have a special exhibit.

Posters from the various auxiliaries of the conference will be on display under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Bauer, Wausau, and an exhibit of books, magazines, pamphlets, and papers of secular press will be shown. This display will have a bearing on the Home Missionary project to promote secular reading for missionary programs. Miss Esther Miller and Mrs. John Engel, Jr., will be in charge. Posters made by the local auxiliary showing the work that is planned for the year and work done in the past will comprise another exhibit.

Mrs. E. Day, bureau secretary of Utah and Wyoming, will be the principal speaker at the two-day meeting. She will talk Thursday afternoon at the banquet at 7:30 Thursday evening which will be open to men as well as women, and Friday morning. Her talks will be an building projects. Mrs. Day has supervision of all Methodist work among the Indians in Utah and Wyoming, and has been doing a great deal of building on those reservations. In 1931 she was conference hostess for the national convention in Minneapolis.

The entire program of the convention is being around the theme of "Building of women in all fields. All sessions are open to any women in the city who are interested. The convention will open with an executive committee meeting at 10:30 Thursday morning in the Social Union room, and registration will take place at 11 o'clock on the main floor in the exhibit room. The luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock. Reservations for the luncheon, as well as for Thursday night and Friday's luncheon, must be in at the office early Thursday morning.

Expected Over 150 It is expected that 100 persons will have registered by Thursday noon and about 150 are expected for the banquet. The largest delegation to report up to the present time is from Milwaukee, 31 reservations having been sent in from that city.

At the banquet Thursday evening, a Queen Esther hour will be arranged by Mrs. John Engel, Jr., for the local group and by Mrs. J. C. Schroeder for the conference. This program will be put on by the girls of high school age.

Mrs. L. A. Youtz is chairman of the entertainment committee. Any woman who plan to take guests in to their homes for the conference are to notify Mrs. Youtz immediately. Other committee heads are Mrs. Emma Dutcher, meals; Mrs. H. E. Heckert, decorations; Mrs. H. E. Griffin, registration; Mrs. C. Remley and Mrs. L. Crow, music; Mrs. Edith Wright, exhibits; Mrs. J. A. Holmes, Mrs. N. H. Brokaw, Mrs. O. P. Schlafer, Mrs. F. E. Wright, and Mrs. Harriet Nicholson, reception; and Miss Esther Miller, publicity.

Victim of Accident Moved From Hospital

Donald, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Schiedermayer, 116 S. Memorial-dr., who suffered a concussion of the brain, cuts and bruises in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon, was able to leave St. Elizabeth hospital this afternoon. The condition of his mother, Mrs. George Schiedermayer, who suffered a cut on her forehead, also is greatly improved. The accident occurred at the corner of E. College-ave and Lawrence-ave when the Schiedermayer machine and a car driven by Sam Brooks, Wausau, collided. The Schiedermayer car was driven by an older son. Mr. Schiedermayer also was in the car. Both machines were damaged.

Scout Promoted to Second-Class Rank

Gordon Chadek was promoted to second class Scout at the court of honor which was held at the meeting of Troop 8, Boy Scouts of the Congregational church, Tuesday evening at the church. Merit badges were awarded to Ralph Gillette for automobile and pioneering, and to John Younger for botany, zoology, pioneering, bird study, farm home and its planning, and stamp collecting. W. F. Bradburn and Philip Bixby of the troop committee were present.

ARRESTED; KILLS SELF

Madison—(P)—Arrested for drunkenness, Larry Flynn, 39, committed suicide in the Dane-co jail early today, by slashing his neck with a piece of glass from a cell window he shattered.

Muskrat Season in County Is Now Open

The trapping season for 1932-33 opened Tuesday in Outagamie-co, sending several hundred trappers out on their first round of trap lines. Other counties in which the season opened Tuesday were Brown, Calumet, Fond du Lac, Waushara, Winnebago, and Waupaca, except within the village of Marion, Waupaca-co, where there shall be no open season. The season remains open to April 1. In most other places in the state the season is only from March 1 to April 10 in the even numbered years which means there is no trapping for rats until the spring of 1934.

The season on otter and beaver does not open until Nov. 15 and runs to March 1.

Roosevelt and Hoover Targets Of Falsehoods

Whispering Campaign Warmes Up as Rivalry Grows Intense

BY RODNEY DUTCHER Washington—The presidential campaign's war of reports and so are the whispering campaigns. With very few if any exceptions, all election years have found politicians circulating malicious falsehoods about the opposition's candidate among the mass of credulous voters.

The only pleasant aspect to this ancient phase of politics is that it doesn't seem very effective. Whispering campaigns probably do not change many votes, and there is no good evidence that one ever affected the result in a presidential election. Those best remembered have usually been aimed at candidates who were victorious. Also, the whispering campaigns of 1932, it appears from reports received here, are singularly free from undercover attacks on the character and personal habits of the nominees. Apparently no one anywhere is whispering that the candidates are habitual drunkards or unfaithful to their wives. But whatever the reason for this remarkable omission, it is hardly to be attributed to an increase of scruples among politicians.

Origin of the subterranean campaign canards is usually hard to trace, but there is frequently a suspicion that they emanate from a close up toward the party's high command. Either the Republican or the Democratic national committee people can work themselves into high indignation over the other committee's alleged propagation of them.

Sometimes they even take official notice and issue substantiated denials. Perhaps the chief rumor circulated against Hoover this year, has been the allegation that he was a British citizen and had voted in England. Republicans say "millions" of photostatic copies of a page from a London voters' roll bearing Hoover's name have been distributed widely. There is not the slightest evidence that Hoover ever voted in London. Yet Republican Publicity Director Henry J. Allen has felt it worthwhile to issue a denial by Assistant Secretary of State Castle, who said he had checked the records again.

The British voting charge was old stuff, having been investigated and denied by Secretary Kellogg in 1928.

Another revival from 1928 is the absurd yarn that a ranch of Hoover's in California put out a sign saying "No White Labor Need Apply." Also, according to G. O. P. leaders, "millions" of scurrilous post cards are being mailed which malign Hoover for his eviction of the bonus army.

Al Smith suffered far worse than Hoover from widespread attacks in 1928, but no one supposes they cost him the election, even though they were as vicious and absurd as any barrage of false gossip ever laid down at an individual. And no one supposes that whispering campaigns will decide the contest in 1932.

Democrats say the Republicans have been spreading lies about Roosevelt's health, also basing an under-cover attack against Jack Garner on the assertion that Garner would be sure to complete the Roosevelt term. Roosevelt has pretty well refuted that one by his vigorous western swing, which made everyone realize that his health was excellent despite his lameness. Catholic Democrats have been told that Smith's defeat and Roosevelt's nomination were the result of a Ku Klux Klan plot and that the way to be loyal to Al was to rebuke Roosevelt.

Democratic headquarters also puts in the whispering campaign category the yarn from the west that Roosevelt promised certain farmer leaders to support free silver and abandonment of the gold standard, the bonus and other inflationary measures calculated to scare the conservative east out of its wits. History tells of other whispering campaigns against Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, James A. Garfield, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Warren G. Harding. Usually the rumors involved drunkenness, immorality or negro blood, although Cleveland was also falsely accused of wife beating in the White House.

Births

A daughter was born at St. Elizabeth hospital this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gray, route 4, Appleton.

A daughter was born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Stengel, route 2, Black Creek. Mrs. Stengel was formerly Miss Helen Baumann, Mackville.

ALICE DISAPPOINTS 2500 WOMEN

Twenty-five hundred women voters gathered in Indianapolis to hear Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth take the stump for President Hoover. But Mrs. Longworth, after being introduced, refused to speak and walked out of the meeting. Indiana Republican leaders offered no explanation for her refusal to speak.

"Smear Hoover" Drive Is Laid to Democrats

Los Angeles—(P)—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde in a political address today accused the Democratic national campaign of attempting to "smear" President Hoover and described the political efforts of Franklin D. Roosevelt as "sneaky," "evasive and insincere." In an appearance before a Republican luncheon here the secretary said the tide of public opinion has turned to the president. He accused the Democrats of "frantic squawking" and asserted their presidential nominee has become filled with "panic."

Start Distributing Clothes Next Week To City Indigents

The newly stocked storehouse of the Appleton Welfare and Relief council, located in the basement of Hotel Northern, will be open for inspection by relief workers and other interested parties on Friday and Saturday afternoons. Distribution of clothing will start at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and until all immediate demands are satisfied it will be open all day every day. Relief council officials are eager to have all persons interested in the distribution of relief inspect the new storehouse. New shelves have been built in the new quarters, and clothes have been fumigated, sorted, and shelved according to sizes. All hold-over clothing from last winter, packed in moth balls during the summer, has been prepared for distribution.

More Rain Predicted For Tonight, Thursday

Skies will be cloudy tonight and Thursday and showers are probable in the north and central portions of the state.

The weatherman says. The mercury is due for a rise, except in the extreme southeast portions of Wisconsin, tonight. On Thursday, colder weather will prevail in the western portions. A fair weather prevailed in this vicinity Wednesday for the first time in almost a week. The mercury started rising somewhat during the morning, but failed to pass yesterday's high mark of 44 degrees above zero in spite of the bright sunshine.

At 6 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 34 degrees above zero, and at noon it registered 44 degrees above.

Strive to Identify Body of Year-Old Child in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(P)—Police sought today to establish the identity of a year-old child, whose body was found this morning in an expensive coffin on a street between two cemeteries. The child, whose sex had not been determined, had been dead a year or more.

Norbert Reuter, who lives in the neighborhood of the Holy Cross and Wanderer's Rest cemeteries, which are opposite each other, first saw the coffin, of gray white plush, on W. Appleton-ave, which is also Highway 41. Sheriff's deputies removed it to the county morgue. Although rain fell most of Tuesday night and early today, the coffin was not wet. It was discovered about 7 a. m. and could not have been on the highway very long before that time.

The body was in a mummified condition, a phase in the changes of a human body which comes between one and two years after death, the coroner said. The infant was dressed in the best of clothing.

Roosevelt Is Expecting to Win 48 States

"We'll Have Big Party After Nov. 8," He Tells Workers

New York—(P)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for the presidency, told some 500 workers at his national headquarters today that the 1932 Democratic campaign was "the most practical, worthwhile" one in the whole history of campaigning.

"We'll have a great big party after Nov. 8," he said, and the workers cheered. It was Gov. Roosevelt's first visit to the headquarters of the Democratic National committee, and he went there shortly after arriving in the city from his southern campaign tour. He was introduced to the workers by National Chairman James A. Farley as "the next president."

"This is a nice family party," the governor responded. "We have had a splendid trip and we're not through yet. This is just a brief word of thanks. There'll be more thanks later."

"There has never been a national headquarters run so efficiently. In all the history of campaigning this is the most practical, worth while campaign. It's a record. And it's been the cheapest campaign for the American people."

"Jim Farley is right," he said. "We're not only looking to 36 states but to 48. We'll have a great big party after Nov. 8."

After addressing the workers the governor held a brief press conference in which he expressed confidence of Democratic victory.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the tide was set many weeks ago for the Democratic ticket and is continuing to flow that way and will continue until the polls close on Nov. 8."

The Democratic presidential candidate's special train reached the city about 6 a. m., but Roosevelt did not leave it for his town house until 9:30.

In the meantime he received a brief visit from his wife, who is herself starting on a campaign trip for the state Democratic ticket to stay. Mrs. Roosevelt was stopped from coaching her husband's train by a station guard who did not recognize her, but her identity was quickly learned and she was escorted to the Roosevelt car.

After a brief visit with her husband she left for the school of which she is part owner and where she teaches three days a week.

There was a small crowd in the station and when the Democratic candidate walked to the street he was cheered. He waved his hat.

Escorted by motorcycle police he drove to his New York home for a brief rest before visiting national Democratic headquarters.

Will Deliver Address He said that although he could not attend the dinner tomorrow night he would address the crowd from Albany by long distance telephone.

Yesterday National Chairman James A. Farley, in the belief that Gov. Roosevelt would be present at the dinner, asked police to arrange to handle a crowd of 500,000 persons in Times square.

The dinner is to be in the Astor hotel in Times square and it was arranged to have Gov. Roosevelt head a torchlight parade from the Grand Central terminal where he was expected to arrive at 8 p. m.

To Wed "Ideal Man"

The "ideal man" and the "most beautiful co-ed" are going to be married. Miss Ruth Wenter, above, who won the co-ed title at Northwestern university, has announced her engagement to Paul Cummings, who last year was voted the "ideal man" on the campus.

Round One: Pulp Wood Versus Grizzly Bears

New York—(P)—A one-man filibuster in favor of better living conditions for grizzly bears had delegates to a wild life lovers' convention feeling rather ragged today. Scenes tempestuous marked the manner in which John M. Holzworth went to bat for ursus horribilis at the annual meeting of the National Association of Audubon societies.

Striding into the convention yesterday with 500 proxies under his arm, Holzworth, a lawyer and hunter, charged that the bears of Alaska were being sacrificed to the interests of a pulp wood concession.

Cries of "hush up!" and "throw him out!" came from delegates, who expressed complete sympathy with bears, but said they objected to Holzworth's method of defending them.

Dancing up and down, Holzworth accused the chairman, Dr. Theodore C. Palmer, biologist of the bureau of biological survey, of being in league with wood pulp interests. He said the directors of the Audubon societies adopted a resolution last year calling for a sanctuary on Admiralty and Chicago islands, but had since abandoned the project. He asked why.

"Are you for the bears or for wood pulp?" he cried. "I will read this resolution or die."

"I ask to have him removed," said one member. "Who'll put me out?" shouted Mr. Holzworth, "come on, any three of you."

Dr. Frank A. Ostler, a director who lost a toe to a grizzly bear not long ago, arose and said with dignity "This is a respectable meeting and we want gentlemen at it."

The chairman, smiling calmly, thwacked his gavel and broke it. "It is unfair," said L. Nichols, "to come here and bully us on a question we know nothing about. I don't want to be bullied and I don't intend to be bullied."

The musical voice of a white-haired lady in a pink scarf intoned: "We are all perfect—both men and women. Men are perfect and women are perfect. We all have our arms and legs. We are all God's creatures. So are the animals."

Her voice trailed off. Mr. Nichols kept clapping his hands as Mr. Holzworth's resolution was read. He urged the societies to establish Admiralty island as a wild life sanctuary or national park and to support a congressional inquiry into paper pulp concessions.

A substitute resolution urging that the whole matter be studied by the board of directors was passed instead. Mr. Holzworth tore up his 500 proxies.

Mississippi Jeweler

Fatally Shot in Duel

Greenwood, Miss.—(P)—George W. Littlefield, a jeweler, was killed and H. G. Kitchener, prominent business man, was wounded slightly in a gun duel here today. They met, quarreled a few minutes and started shooting. Kitchener, shot in the left hand, surrendered but gave no cause for the quarrel.

Flashes of Life

J. Pluvius Frowns on G. W. Norristown, Pa.—The Montgomery County Washington Bi-Centennial committee has decided it is just about "all washed up" on its efforts to hold an outdoor celebration. For the third time this year, rain yesterday washed out "marching of the colors" demonstration that had attracted crowds from all over the county.

Get Brighter, Is Tip Milwaukee—The financial recession, the Dr. Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota, will be followed by a revival in education.

"Great steps in the advance of education have followed every such period," he said in an address. "People saw the problems were more complex, more difficult to solve. They saw that the next generation must be better educated to enable it to solve its problems."

All salaries and wages in the French Ministry of Finance have been cut five per cent.

TELEPHONE RATE CASE

The appeal of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission to the federal supreme court from an injunction temporarily restraining its 12 1/2 per cent reduction in telephone rates upon condition that the Telephone Company post a bond of a million dollars to repay subscribers if the rate cut is eventually upheld, appears to have some aspects of a mock trial although it is to be hoped the court at Washington does not take that view of it.

While the posted bond, as well as the financial stability of the telephone company, is ample protection to the public in this immediate case, a much larger and more important question is involved. Questions concerning the authority of the Commission, the validity of a statute under which the Commission acted, and the matter of the control of rates in a practical fashion by the Commission, are all at stake.

If the supreme court will entertain the appeal it must be carried on even though the completed trial before the Commission at Madison alters or modifies the temporary order. Wisconsin must know in the future what it can do, and the Telephone Company has a right also to know what it may expect, from regulation in an emergency.

The statute which has caused the difficulty reads:

"The Commission may by order, when deemed by it necessary to prevent injury to the business or interests of the people or any public utility in case of any emergency to be judged so by the commission, temporarily alter or amend . . . any existing rates . . . relating to or affecting any public utility."

Although such an emergency may not arise again for twenty years, and we hope for longer, the proper machinery must be created in advance to handle it when it comes. Rate making is not a matter of temporary character nor can rate schedules be altered in a jiffy. Under ordinary conditions rates, once established, are sufficient for a period of years. It takes weeks and months of inquiry to suggest or justify amendment.

It must be conceded that the statute under attack is a peculiar one but so too are the circumstances. Ordinarily the determination of rates must be based upon exactitude and such a condition can result only from an exhaustive inquiry with full opportunity to all parties to be heard. The very existence of an emergency like that under which we are living refutes the possibility of the ordinarily complete hearing. The statute appears fair and practical. If the temporary order does injustice to the utility the final order must correct it.

Before the highest court rules against the validity of the statute or the actions of the commission under it, consideration must be given to this question—What other machinery may be set up or method applied to take care of rate making in an emergency?

WHEN THE ENGINEER STUMBLED

On the 17th of September, 1928, Mr. Hoover spoke at Newark, New Jersey. He could not have been unimpressed by the fact that his party was advancing him as the superman, the great engineer, who understood not only trigonometry and calculus but was probably able to debate with Mr. Einstein his theory of relativity.

Mr. Hoover had a great fondness for figures. He loved statistics. He proved everything by an application of mathematics to different and various conditions and conclusions.

In the address at Newark Mr. Hoover spoke thus:

"If we say that 5 per cent of butter and 95 per cent of flour form the basis of that useful mixture called 'bread and butter' then the weekly earnings in each country would buy at retail in those countries the following total of this useful compound."

The candidate for president then showed that a railway engineer in the United States in 1928 could buy 717 pounds of bread and butter with his weekly check. He then went on and applied the same figures to each man's job, loading his listeners down with so much bread and butter that they knew they couldn't stagger ten feet with it, and were happy in consequence. Mr. Hoover then compared our railway engineer to one employed in England, another in Germany and so on down the list throughout the world.

None of them had so much bread and butter as his American counterpart.

Three cheers and many votes!

And now Mr. Hoover is up for election again. He is speaking in Cleveland, Ohio, on the night of October 15. Strange thing, he repeats the exact paragraph we have quoted above from his address at Newark four years before. But he finds out that the railway engineer who in 1928 could buy 717 pounds of bread and butter with his paycheck can now buy 1069 pounds.

And again he shows his audience what a happy nation we are because employees in other countries can only get 100, 200 or possibly 300 pounds "of that useful compound" with their paychecks.

Mr. Hoover, of course, in his Cleveland address only sought to show that our workers today are better off than workers in other countries, but as indicating the great extent to which a mathematical prodigy may go he has actually demonstrated that our workers today are a great deal better off than they were in 1928. At least with prevailing wages they can buy more bread and butter. All of which tends to show the beauty and the reliability of figures, the very majesty of statistics and what a marvelous, and dangerous, thing it is to know how to apply them with the science of an engineer.

AND HE DISCOVERED AMERICA

Count Boni de Castellane is dead. Although neither patent nor copyright was ever issued to him the Count originated a great idea.

He came to America in 1895 impoverished. He rented a hall bedroom above a dressmaking shop. He was next door to broke. But he had ambition and, although he weighed less than a hundred pounds, it seemed to be a hundred pounds of nerve.

The Count established the practice of trading a title for American dollars. After he married Anna Gould the country gasped to learn that he had insisted upon, and received, $3,000,000 as the price of his consent "to love, honor and protect."

It was a great idea. Boni, as he became known the world over, just a mad little spendthrift, with waxed mustache and corseted waist, but swiftly acting mind, had determined that he wanted to be a Prince of Boulevardiers, he wanted to live in the grand style, arise at noon, parade the avenue for a little fresh air, take a scented bath, dine and wine gorgeously, and the only way he could figure out to accomplish this end was to make of Anna Gould, Mme. la Comtesse.

Boni soon spent his $3,000,000 and went through so much of the fortune of his wife as he could get in his hands.

The world admired his spunk and crust and voted him the perfect type of ne'er-do-well. And yet he accomplished a purpose. He put into circulation millions of dollars that otherwise might have become stagnant. He set an example to other impoverished aristocrats across the water. Many of them married American heiresses. Most of the marriages turned out unhappily. And the odd part of it is that titles which American men for the most part would avoid attract a certain class of American women. But the luster, under the harsh hand of experience, has about rubbed off.

There always appears to be considerable doubt about the titles offered upon the American market. What must have been the chagrin of Mme. la Comtesse when the Prince of Monaco refused to notice a challenge from Boni with the declaration that the latter's title was bogus. It was a mighty poor bargain to pay 3 millions for a bauble but to have the inherited name branded a fake was too much to bear.

To the end Boni was proud of his coup in taking over the American heiress and in his latter, and poorer, days he wrote a book, "How I Discovered America."

At that he got more out of America than Columbus.

THE LYTON REPORT

The report of the Lyton commission, composed of experts from Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany and Italy, deplores present conditions in Manchuria, and condemns Japanese military and diplomatic tactics there. This report, which comes up before the league of nations for approval later this month, is received by Washington as in complete accord with the Hoover-Chiang Kai-shek policy.

The report says, in brief, that Japan provoked war in Manchuria, that Japan was prepared for military activities there while China was not, that both Japan and China have rights there, but that Manchuria would best be preserved as an individual entity hereafter; that the new Manchurian state of Manchukuo is obviously a Japanese puppet, but that China could probably control no better; that immediate withdrawal of Japanese troops to be supplanted by an effective police force is desirable; that Japan and China should effect a new nonaggression pact and a commercial treaty regarding Manchuria; that in setting up autonomy for Manchuria the rights of all—particularly of Manchuria, Japan and China—should be respected—and that a strong Chinese central government should be encouraged. The report advocates a new Sino-Japanese conference on Manchuria, with the league as a court of last resort in case of deadlocks.

The Japanese were, of course, who seem now to have dominated the island empire for almost a year, sought strenuously to nullify or delay the Lyton report. Today the war office and the Japanese vernacular press join in assailing the report as dominated by anti-orientalism and talk about Japan quitting the league. Another draft indicates that the Japanese budget now being drafted indicates that the Japanese military sweep of Manchuria. The Japanese army and navy ask $48,000,000 each for "additional expenses" in 1933, the navy's total request being $120,000,000 and the army's $105,000,000. Those familiar with Japanese finances have been expecting a national economic crisis since the Shanghai bombardment—Indianapolis News.

Now, if the ducks are just smart enough to get going South while the hunters are being rained out, there'll be fewer casualties among them. The ducks, we mean. But that casually remark goes for the hunters, too.

Read where Samuel Insull is spending his time wandering around the ruins of Athens. Which is something like the sailor taking a boat ride on his day off.

Football is creating its casualties as usual this year despite the legislation. It's interesting to note that the fatalities, almost without exception, have come from games played without proper supervision, equipment, coaching and by players not in good physical condition.

Rightfully, we think, should serious attention be devoted to the dangers of football. At the same time, the nation complacently accepts the fact that thousands are being fatally injured in automobile accidents every year, that most of the accidents come through poor driving by incapable drivers, through bad road conditions, human carelessness and cars in poor mechanical order.

At least the controlling minds in football have been unwavering in their efforts to cut down the dangers. Why have not the big minds of traffic regulation and driving licenses done the same thing?

Probably more people are killed driving to and from football games than from playing the game.

CROW CONVENTION

So deafening a tumult rose
From out a grove where gathered crows.
I said to Bill: "I fancy that's
A group of feathered Democrats."

"Republicans perhaps," said Bill,
Or what is ever likelier still.
So long the clamoring persists
Those inky birds are Communists."

Convention time and early fall.
A patch of woods the meeting hall.
And all that bickering, I suppose,
About the common rights of crows.

"At times," said I, "I envy birds,
Denied the privilege of words,
But when the crows convene again
I think how much they are like men."

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SOME PEOPLE HAVE SOUND TEETH YET THEY NEVER BRUSH 'EM.

All I know is what I read in the clippings. This particular clipping purports to be by Morris Gilbert, and it is copyrighted by New York Evening Post, Inc., and bears the date-line London, March 10. For all I know it may be some deep laid plot to get me in Dutch somewhere, but it is so good that I can't let it pass without commenting on it.

The item tells of the annual visit of the supply ship from Cape Town to a lonely island in the South Atlantic named Tristan da Cunha, I know it may be some deep laid plot to get me in Dutch somewhere, but it is so good that I can't let it pass without commenting on it.

The item tells of the annual visit of the supply ship from Cape Town to a lonely island in the South Atlantic named Tristan da Cunha, I know it may be some deep laid plot to get me in Dutch somewhere, but it is so good that I can't let it pass without commenting on it.

This expert examined the teeth of 156 of the inhabitants in the two days the ship remained at the island, and found no less than 131 persons ranging in age from a few months to 92 years, with teeth entirely free from decay, teeth he was constrained to regard as perfect.

Now according to the dental hygiene that is accepted as scientific and sound by the dentists of this country and by millions of the laity, two fundamentals are necessary if you hope to have good teeth. First, you must brush your teeth quite regularly, and second you must include a considerable proportion of hard tack or rough food in your diet, things that require some chewing to exercise and harden your teeth and gums. Most old time dentists—and most dentists seem to be old timers about this—hold that the message of the gums is the main feature in brushing the teeth, and they generally concede that if a person were to subsist entirely on raw vegetables, fruits, whole cereals, etc., the gnawing and grinding of these foods might keep the teeth clean and sound without any brushing. But they always imply that such a diet is not feasible for civilized man.

These inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha are the answer to all this baloney the dentists have been passing out here in America. As Mr. Moore, the inspector quoted, says, "In no case did the examiners find an islander who had ever cleaned his teeth."

Somehow that reminds me of an anti-fetetic statement which is published by dentists in America from time to time, to the effect that perfect teeth are never found in this country, where toothbrushes are positively de rigueur.

These islanders with the astonishingly good teeth do not subsist on hard or rough foods at all. The staples of their diet are precisely the things we are trying to persuade people to eat and feed their children in this country—milk, eggs, potatoes and fish. They eat meat on holidays. They use some refined flour, tea and other "groceries" while these last, for a time following the visit of the supply ship from the mainland. Presumably the islanders grow other fresh vegetables and greens, as well as potatoes. The milk they use is fresh RAW milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Learning by Experience.
Six months ago I went to a quack dermatologist who gave me X-ray treatments and then a lotion. This burned the skin off my face. I suffered great pain and disfigurement. The lotion was analyzed and found to be an acid. But when I sought the help of a real doctor the quack was not financially responsible. (Miss C. A.)

Answer—Some young persons can learn by precept. Others have to learn by experience. I have harped on this matter of RESPONSIBILITY of your doctor or specialist in any case, but evidently many readers are either very simple customers or think they know more than I do. A reputable or reliable physician, surgeon or specialist is always responsible. A quack or charlatan always has things arranged for a quick getaway in case some atrociously precipitates a suit for damages. A reputable physician, no matter how poor he may be, protects his patients by carrying insurance to cover the risk. A quack or charlatan, no matter how rich he may be, can't buy such insurance, because the insurance companies are too shrewd to deal with such crooks.

Kindly send me a full list of foods containing oxalic acid, and the quantity in each food. (S. E.)

Answer—I have no such list. These foods contain oxalic acid: Spinach, sorrel, rhubarb, strawberries, plums, gooseberries, tomatoes, green beans, dried figs, cabbage, black tea, chocolate, cocoa, chicory, pepper. Foods containing more magnesium and less calcium are generally beneficial where there is any trouble from oxalic acid; such foods are rice, wheat, buckwheat, corn meal, nuts, apples, coffee, peas, oatmeal, potatoes, lemons. A dentist recently informed us that he suffers severely if he eats strawberries, but he has no trouble if he takes lemon juice or lemonade freely at the same time.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE dumbbell which was fighting stopped and to its side wee Cappy hopped. "It isn't nice to fight," said he. "It surely isn't fun."

"What is the argument about? Some simple little thing, no doubt. Explain it to me, dumbbell, and I'll see what can be done."

One of the dumbbells said, "Well, you are so kind, I'll gladly tell. I want to take a little walk, but I can't go alone."

"The other head must go with me, but it objects. That spoils it, see? Why, I have even begged it in a very friendly tone."

Then Cappy, at the other head, smiled very sweetly. Then he said, "Come on, we'll all go for a walk and see what we can see."

"I'll lead the way through trees and such. I'm sure it will not tire you much. The stubborn dumbbell head soon smiled and said, 'Well, that suits me.'"

So, off they went. The Tynmites set out to show the dumbbell sights. The two heads got along just fine for 'bout an hour or so.

Then Cappy said, "I'd like to see that dumbbell run. It seems to me that it would be real funny. Wonder how fast it can go?"

Both of the dumbbell heads replied, "Shucks, we can run fast, side by side. We'll race you little Tynies and we'll likely beat you, too."

"Hurray!" cried Cappy. "That means fun! When I say go, we'll start to run. You'll find that you are left behind when we get through with you."

Then Cappy made his wee voice ring with "Go!" They ran like everything. The race was very thrilling. How the happy Tynies flew.

The dumbbell crashed into a tree. It was a real sad sight to see. The force of running made the little dumbbell break in two.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — There'll be a job open for some new member of the house in the next congress — one that will project him into the limelight immediately and keep him there as long as he desires.

Underhill of Massachusetts is retiring from the house at the close of the present congress, thus leaving the job open. Anyone who wants it and has enough nerve can have it.

It requires only about 15 minutes after the speaker has banged his gavel at noon opening the session. All that is necessary is to be able to yell a lusty "I object!"

It is during this time that extraneous matter is inserted in the Congressional Record in that section known as the appendix. Senator King of Utah describes it "the burial ground for speeches."

Roughly about 23 per cent of the Record at present is taken up by this extraneous matter.

'Debunking' The Record
Underhill constantly battled to hold the appendix down. He called the Record a "catch all" for members of congress, pleaded with members that it be "debunked" and did a lot of "debunking" himself with his "I object."

He made wide studies of the Record of several congresses. He found, among other things, that in one case alone it cost the government $13,760.85 for a member to extend his remarks.

He asserted also that congressmen like to tickle the vanity of their constituents by printing articles and speeches that the constituents themselves make, that others clutter up the pages with statistics only of interest to their own districts, and that newspaper editorials are inserted which flatter publishers.

Some of the members, Underhill says, insert long reports on what they have done in congress, have it printed and broadcast over their districts just before election time.

Harsh Words And Glares
At times he was razzed unmercifully by his colleagues for his ideas on Record reform. His "I objects" often brought harsh words and glares from his colleagues. Many times a member would wait until he had gone from the chamber, then hastily insert his speech or article.

But when Underhill was on the spot few got by him.

The Soviet government has changed the name of Nizhny-Novgorod to Maxim Gorki. It's no bargain either way you take it.

A couple of football players were arrested for robbery the other day. Maybe the game is becoming more honest, after all.

It took a $6 hat at $3.95 to turn Appleton's head and habits.

A lot of men were going to get along without Fall hats until this special feature of ours appeared on the horizon.

It's pretty hard to turn down a brim that asks but $3.95 and offers more than you ever had at $6.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Quite a lot of affectionate fuss is made over the police department's horses. And no wonder.

These sleek, graceful animals do much toward making New York's mounted patrol the "finest in the world." Their street behavior could well serve as a model for a lot of people.

They know their beats as well as the men who ride them. They know at what time and at what point along the block the man will come out with a lump of sugar or a piece of apple. They are gentle with children and elderly women who are over-demonstrative and tolerant of the sidewalk groups who stare and cluck.

The education of a police horse is painstaking and thorough. He is acquainted with the smell of powder, the sound of shot and the sight of fire. He and his rider must know all about each other, and the horse is taught what to do when he is left without the rider. It is to the credit of the mounted division that the men take such pride in their charges. The men beam their satisfaction when their horses are admired.

Shying in the street might prove fatal to the horses. They are broken to traffic so carefully that the noisy onrush of cars doesn't phase them. And a grand sight it is, to see a mountie rush his steed through a maze of motors, to hawl out some driver who has parked wrong.

Gotham Glimpses
That section of Manhattan which has the prettiest backyards is romantically called Turtle Bay, in the upper East Forties.

Turtle Bay's street fronts are not so impressive. Some of the old residences (most of them converted into apartments houses) present a mournful and uninviting view to the passerby. Their walls rise from the sidewalks, with no space for greenery or flowers up forward.

But the fair size gardens in the rear usually are well kept and treasured by the jammed-up city dwellers. Here and there you'll find one dressed up elaborately, with fountain and ornamental whatnots — a surprising contrast to the front.

The backyards of Turtle Bay especially are esteemed by those who keep cats and dogs. The feline neighbors assemble on the fences for choral practice every night and the pups go wild.

Fifteen Months in Russia

some fifteen months before, and on all subsequent trips. The platform of the Baltic station in Moscow, flooded with late afternoon sunlight, was already swarming with the crowds gathering for the May Day celebration, the station of which we were hastening to avoid. I stayed in the compartment to guard the food hamper while Jim walked the length of the long train to climb aboard the baggage car in order to make sure that our luggage was in it and not being abandoned on the platform. The only way to guard against loss of luggage in Soviet Russia is personally to supervise its loading. And beside, in addition to the sum of 900 roubles which had been charged for our first class tickets, the additional fee of 350 roubles (175 dollars) for the transportation of two wardrobe trunks stimulated a determination not to have them left behind. Despite their almost worthless contents of old clothes, peasant embroidery and painted wooden bowls. The number of ruthless inspections of outgoing baggage which had been experienced by friends in our colony had prompted us to sew our only possessions of particular value—pictures, papers and data—into the lining of our top coats.

There had also been instances of disappearing lunch boxes. Our hamper was sizable and bulged temptingly. Had our journey been one, let us say, of twenty four hours, we might have heeded the official in the consistently misformed little Intermountain Bureau in Kharkov, who vowed so vehemently the presence of a fine restaurant car on the famous Trans-Siberian express. But the traveling time from Moscow to the Manchurian border was six days and seven nights. To go forth on such a Russian trip in a foodless condition, in the opinion of the American residents of the USSR still under the capitalistic urge of daily eating, was utterly inconceivable. My wife, between her tears of that last week, bought, borrowed and probably stole ingredients for our farewell basket. There were numerous loaves of her bread, a cheese, hard-boiled eggs, little cookies, duck and chicken, and a priceless can of American bouillon cubes, the inestimable gift of a fellow engineer. A glimpse of the contents would have overcome most Russians. So not until the train had rumbled its way out of the Moscow station, and the frosty, friendly porters had been enlisted by tips and threats to guard our portmanteaus with their lives, did we bend our way through the long corridors of the swaying train to the much acclaimed restaurant car.

It was deserted save for an affable waiter in a black blouse who explained that, as everyone usually dined in Moscow before leaving, the table d'hôte meal served on the train would be the next day. However he might get us some fried cutlets and vegetable salad. The food was poorly prepared, the check totaled eight dollars, but the table cloths were clean and the air agreeable. Back in our upholstered compartment, with the light of the last day of our residence in Soviet Russia shining through the labyrinth of passing birch forests, a sense of peace was felt as refreshing as a cool draft of air in a long closed room.

Few Fences
Late April in Siberia was balmy, but the brown stubbled steppes and great wooded hills of the Urals as yet showed no tinge of green. The great fenceless, roadless fields and the drab little villages along the swampy rivers looked much as those seen in the Ukraine, the these dwellings were made of logs rather than earth, and many primitive sawmills dotted the track. Beautiful white birch logs of the passing forests were heaped in the tender of our engine, being used for fuel in place of coal as we went on and on thru the hours.

The roadbed was very uneven. There were sections of the track which one is accustomed to see along a right of way. The speed maintained averaged twenty miles per hour. The effect was rather that of a cross-country jog in a horse drawn buggy than the railed traversing of continents. Frequently the train would stop and toot menacingly at a herd of cows or goats crossing its path. Every station reached where expressionless crowds in ragged clothes and straw shoes stared listlessly at the passengers during the twenty minute wait. The Russians from the second class or soft-wagons were chiefly concerned with filling their teakettles from the hot water faucet at each station. Passengers from the international wagons promenaded briskly back and forth beside their cars.

Of foreign travelers there were but four—Jim and I and an American chancellor and a German professor returning from Berlin, after a leave of absence, to their college in Peiping. When they had crossed to Germany on the Trans-Siberian express twenty months before, the platform of each village station had its peasant vendors of eggs and honey, dark bread and milk whose produce enabled the more resourceful passengers of the train to remain fairly independent of the food served aboard. So these fellow travelers had fared forth on the return journey trustfully, fortified with a few bars of chocolate and an armful of magazines. Soon they were too hungry to read. Each stop of the train would send them striding with ever decreasing hope into the little depots and thru the onlookers of the platform in search of the friendly, welcome peddlers of their previous trip, who had since disappeared as completely as the winter snows. Chunks of black bread could have been purchased from dirty hands and dill pickles from unappetizing buckets. But at the sight of these offerings, despite a gnawing hunger, our new friends would turn a sickly green. Our hamper was opened and shared each morn-

Nearing the Border
All that night, the wheels clicked tomorrow-tomorrow-tomorrow. Thoughts of the marvelously free world to which we were drawing nearer made me suddenly thrill with gratitude and joy. Thruout the long journey, soldiers with fixed bayonets had been in evidence at each station, and the clothing and appearance of the peasants who frequented the platforms had improved to a degree as we journeyed far eastward, the dictatorship of the Moscow regime held unrelenting sway to the border. And now after a few more hours had passed the Soviet Union would be a memory.

How many Americans had already left those borders to tell thoughtless tales to a listening civilization. And how few of them—businessmen, diplomats, lecturers, journalists—had not carried an axe to grind, or did not wish to return for further gain. Soon we would be irrevocably shut from a great land of eager-to-be-glad people whom we had grown to know and love and understand. What admissions could anyone believe was being made for man by dedicating millions of human lives to a Godless production of multitudes of material things.

Knocking and a loud voice at our compartment door demanded our portmanteaus. The border was just ahead. Dawn stole over the treeless yellow fields that stretched on all sides toward the horizon, as we dressed hurriedly and joined our two fellow passengers in the corridor. The last of the Russian travelers had reached his destination in the night. The other cars of the express were empty save for a few Chinese. The train came up over purple hills as the train jolted to a stop before the low, yellow drab buildings of Post Eighty-Six, the Soviet border station. It glinted from the great searchlight placed high on a pole nearby, and from the bayonets of soldiers as they paced back and forth beside the locked train, and east long, zigzag shadows beside the network of barbed wire that extended its serpentine length toward the sky line. The corridor of our car was very still save for the crunching footsteps of the guards outside. Forty five tense moments past, as we stood silently in the white caps and trim blue coats graciously waived the examination of our trunks. On into the restaurant we went and to a counter heaped with fruits and delicacies and white rolls. The waiters, the station hands the scrub women—everyone smiled and chatted happily as they worked. The strong tide of the old accustomed freedom to laugh, to speak, to come and go and buy and eat swept around us, and joyfully we threw ourselves back into that tide.

One afternoon, a week later, two rickshaws sped noiselessly thru a massive stone gate in the Legation Quarter of Peiping. The flag that waved aloft in the spring breeze and sunlight had never seemed so beautiful. Among groomed, garden lawns the perfectly kept houses of the United States Legation stood peacefully. In a softly sibilant drawing room, cultured, welcoming voices were warm with kindly greetings and eager questions. From out the depths of cushioned chairs and a maze of silver and

A group of officials left the Post headquarters and entered our car. Brusquely they returned our papers, examined our bags, and confiscated the kodak films taken en route which had been carelessly left in the camera. The car door banged and the train moved forward and past the entanglements. It was as tho the gigantic doors of a jail had swung shut behind us. Even our two companions felt it. We laughed and shouted giddily as bags and boxes were dragged from the racks. Then the train came to a stop beside the spacious, modern station of the border village of Manchouli. Down the corridor we rushed and onto the platform. Suddenly we remembered and looked back. From the windows of our car peered the longing eyes of two frosty, Russian porters—prisoners of the train soon to return to the Soviet heaven on earth! Neatly uniformed Chinese boys were hurrying our belongings into the great baggage hall of an immaculately clean station. Efficient inspectors in white caps and trim blue coats graciously waived the examination of our trunks. On into the restaurant we went and to a counter heaped with fruits and delicacies and white rolls. The waiters, the station hands the scrub women—everyone smiled and chatted happily as they worked. porcelain tea things came the story just told of two travelers who had gone adventuring to the Soviet Union where dreams for humanity are said to come true. Among other possessions they had carried an inherited but lightly valued trifle called American citizenship. When days passed and the eyes of the two Americans had become keen hunting dreams for humanity which could not be found time came to repack their belongings. And the little old trinket left them by their forebears was discovered to be a gem.

Tariff Body Busy Studying Rates Considers Duties Affecting 18 Industries in 30 States

Washington —(AP)—Accompanied by President Hoover's request for quick action, the tariff commission Tuesday had a list of 18 industries in 30 states before it for investigations into the adequacy of existing import duties.

Mr. Hoover submitted the list "of industries and localities where there has been actual increase of unemployment or alternatively where it is inevitable that it will increase from importations" and directed Chairman O'Brien to investigate the tariff rates in connection with depreciated currencies abroad. He added in his letter to O'Brien: "If it shall prove that the difference in cost of production between here and abroad in these industries have altered the basis of the tariff duties, I wish to receive recommendations of the tariff commission at the earliest possible moment." The president had told an audience in Charleston, W. Va., during last weekend's campaign trip that he had asked the commission to investigate tariff rates in the light of depreciated foreign currencies. Commodities included in the list submitted by the president for investigation were: "Rag and glass rugs, tooth and hair brushes, electric light bulbs, cutlery, pottery, rubber boots and shoes, leather gloves, silverware, jewelry, canned vegetables, dried beans, iron and steel products, metal goods, canned fish, lumber products, chemical products."

Offer Play At Meeting In Church

BROADCAST from Station WFCWW, a play written by Mrs. Stephen Peabody of Ripon, was presented at the meeting of the Women's Association of First Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at the church. Those who took part included Mrs. F. H. Richmond, Mrs. Nita Brinkley, Mrs. Max Elias, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. F. M. Johnston, Mrs. A. H. Wickesberg, Mrs. Roy Marston, and W. F. Bradburn.

The devotional service which was written also by Mrs. Stephen Peabody was led by Mrs. T. E. Orison. Circle No. 1 of which Mrs. G. E. Buchanan is captain served tea after the meeting. Between 45 and 50 persons attended.

Mrs. H. E. Peabody entertained officers and captains of circles at a luncheon at Candle Glow tea room before the regular meeting.

Announcement was made of a hard time party to be given Nov. 10 by the social committee for the entire church and of a pageant of dress from 1776 to 1932 to be presented Nov. 18 by Circle No. 10 of which Mrs. Werner Witte and Mrs. Gordon Derber are co-captains.

The second meeting of the adult Bible class at Memorial Presbyterian church conducted by Dr. J. R. Denyes of Lawrence college, will take place at 8 o'clock Thursday night in the church parlors. There will be 12 lessons in the course and the meetings are held every other Thursday.

At the first meeting two weeks ago, 32 persons were present, including a few who are not members of the Presbyterian church. Several others outside of the church have applied and will join the class Thursday evening.

Dr. Denyes began with a study of the Bible beginning with the earliest times, and discussed the idea of God from the beginning down to the present time. He will show how that idea developed using the Bible as a guide.

The committee in charge of the chicken supper to be served from 5 to 8 o'clock Thursday night at First English Lutheran church will meet Wednesday evening at the church to make final arrangements for the supper. Mrs. H. Perske is chairman of the committee.

A teachers' meeting will be held at 7:15 Thursday night at the parish hall, and the adult instruction class will meet at 7:30 Wednesday night at the hall.

An "open house" meeting of the Brotherhood of First English Lutheran church was held Tuesday night at the parish hall for members and their friends. George Lausman gave a whistling act, Homer Bowley gave an address on Wit and Humor, and music was provided by Mrs. Harry Junge and Carl Sager accompanied by Lorraine Junge. About 110 persons were present.

"Songs" by Pearl Buck was reviewed by Mrs. E. F. Berry at the meeting of General Review club Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. N. P. Engler, 1708 N. Drew-st. Twelve members were present. The next meeting will be in two weeks with Mrs. Fred Jentz, Jr., W. Summer-st. Mrs. Engler will review "Told at the Explorer's Club" by Frank Blossom.

A decision to hold the Wednesday evening card parties every Wednesday night until Advent instead of every other Wednesday was reached at the meeting of Christian Mothers' society of St. Therese church Tuesday night at the parish hall. Organization of the study club was postponed until next Tuesday night.

A social meeting for the Ladies' society of Zion Lutheran church will take place at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the parish school auditorium for members and friends. Music and readings will be included on the program, and a harvest supper will be served. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Caroline Thies, Mrs. Augusta Sager, and Mrs. Minnie Schroeder.

Church People to Present Pageant

A group of young people from Trinity English Lutheran church will present a pageant entitled "The Song They Sang" at the banquet at the Women's Missionary society convention Wednesday night at St. Paul church, Nechal. The cast of characters includes Virginia Larsen and June Govel as American girls; Ramona Roehl, Japanese girl; Gladys Frogner, girl from India; Ada Rademacher, girl from China; Lucille Schmidt, girl from Turkistan; Doris Rademacher, Marie Tilly, girls from Ceylon; Patricia Nelson, Doris Babcock, and Della Krueger, girls from Korea; Ruth Anderson, girl from Syria; and Mary Vogel, girl from Burma.

Miss Irene Bosserman will give a monologue, "Hauko San." Miss Helene Harder, Japan, will be the speaker of the evening. There will be no meeting of the Brotherhood of Trinity English Lutheran church, Appleton, because of the banquet at Neenah.

Plan Costume Party For All Girl Scouts
Girl Scout leaders will give a Halloween costume party at 6 o'clock Wednesday night in the old Alexander gymnasium for all Girl Scouts in the city. Miss Marion Hyde is in charge of the event and Mrs. James Mackey is chairman of entertainment. Games and "spook" stories will entertain the guests and prizes will be given for the best costumes. Judges will be members of the Girl Scout community committee.

The Scout ceremony scheduled for last Sunday at Alicia park which was postponed because of the rain, will be held next Sunday.

Attend Dedication of Indian Agency House

Miss Mary de Jonge and Miss Anna Tennie have returned from Portage, where they attended the dedication of Old Indian Agency House, held Saturday. The house, dedicated on the one hundredth anniversary of the arrival of Captain John H. Kinzie, Indian agent, and his bride, Juliette, at the house, has been restored by the Colonial Dames of Wisconsin.

Juliette Kinzie was the author of "Waubun," authentic history of early life in Wisconsin published in 1855. Present at the ceremony were Mrs. George W. Gould, a granddaughter of Juliette Kinzie, and Gordon Kinzie, Gould, a great grandson. Juliette Kinzie Lowe, another granddaughter, was the founder of the Girl Scout movement in America in 1912.

Banta Publishing company at Menasha published a special edition of Waubun, the proceeds of which went toward the reformation of the Old Indian Agency House.

Would Limit Parking In Front of Postoffice

Recommendation that a five-minute parking limit be established on Superior-st in front of the post-office and telephone building was made by the street and bridge committee at a meeting Monday afternoon. To further relieve traffic hazards at the corner of Washington and Superior-sts the group advised the installation of arterial signs on the northeast and southwest corners of the intersection.

The Chicago and Northwestern railroad will be asked to move the wigwag signal at the Superior-st crossing back to the curb line, and to repair crossings on Appleton, Bates and Union-sts. E. C. Wolters was given permission to move a gas pump from Appleton-st to Midway-st, and extension of a sewer on South-st was ordered.

Hi-Y Clubs Inspect Newspaper Plant

A group of about 20 boys from the Viking and Stags Hi-Y clubs visited the Appleton Post-Crescent building yesterday. They made an inspection trip through the plant and heard a talk by a member of the paper's reportorial staff on practices of a newspaper. A general discussion of newspaper work followed. The boys were under direction of Sidney Cotton, leader of one of the groups.

Judge Dismisses 2 Appleton Youths

Willard Peterson and Arthur Stammer of Appleton were discharged from custody on motion of Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday when they changed a plea of not guilty of disorderly conduct to guilty. They were arrested at a Twelve Corners dance hall by Harold Cotter, inspector, but the court decided that the officer had acted hastily and had no cause to arrest the two.

Wisconsin Weather
Cloudy tonight and Thursday, probably showers north and central portion; warmer except extreme southeast portion tonight; colder west portion Thursday.

General Weather
A trough of low pressure which extends from Lake Huron to the mouth of the Mississippi river has caused general showers over the Mississippi valley and the lake region, with heavy rains reported from St. Louis and New Orleans. Fair weather prevails this morning over all sections from the plains states to the Pacific coast. It is cooler this morning over the Mississippi valley and the southern plains states, but temperatures are rising over the upper Missouri valley and the central Rocky Mountains. Unsettled weather, with probably showers, is expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with rising temperatures tonight.

Busy Schedule Being Planned By President

Hoover to Remain on Road Almost Continuously After Friday Night

Washington, Oct. 26.—President Hoover prepared today to wind up his campaign for re-election with a series of speeches, beginning at Indianapolis Friday night, that may keep him on the road almost continuously from now to Election day.

With three speeches definitely scheduled for the next five days, the president was considering proposals which would keep him on the train and speaking platform throughout the final 10 days of the campaign.

He will leave the capital tomorrow night for another swift dash into the middle west to speak at the Indiana capital and then hurry back to Washington to complete addresses already arranged for delivery Monday afternoon at Newark, N. J., and in New York city that night.

His plans beyond that still are tentative but his aides are urging proposals ranging from another four of the hotly disputed middle west to a sweeping transcontinental swing that would carry him to his home at Palo Alto, Calif., for Election day.

Tentative plans to speak in Chicago Saturday before his return from Indianapolis, were abandoned by the chief executive because of the order to allow more time drafting the New York and New York addresses. His friends say he considers the latter one of the most important of the entire campaign.

Chicago is Magnat
Chicago is at the top of the list of cities in which Mr. Hoover is being urged to speak after his New York trip. Others include Springfield, Ill., Minneapolis, St. Louis and Kansas City. A tour to the west coast probably would include speeches at Denver and one of the northwestern cities.

As he hurriedly worked today over his Indianapolis speech, President Hoover kept silent on its subject but his aides predicted that he would again stress the economic policies followed by his administration.

The president will be accompanied to Indiana by Mrs. Hoover and as on his three former campaigns of the middle west, will make a series of rear platform appearances with her enroute.

The itinerary had not been completed today, but one of the routes under consideration was through Parkersburg and Clarksburg, W. Va., to Cincinnati and other Ohio cities.

Mr. Hoover has already crossed every state on this route at least once during the past three weeks, but his aides were attempting to select an itinerary that would carry him to a new list of cities.

Three times already, Mr. Hoover has campaigned through Ohio, twice in West Virginia, and once in Indiana.

His trip to New York Monday will carry him over virgin territory so far as this campaign is concerned and will mark his first invasion of the big eastern states for which both parties are battling warmly.

Clerks to Hold Annual Meeting

Town, City, Village Officials Gather Thursday at Courthouse

Plans have been completed for the annual meeting of the Outagamie County Town, City and Village Clerks' association at the courthouse Thursday. The clerks will gather at 10 a. m. and spend the morning in an open forum discussion of their various problems. At noon there will be a banquet at Hotel Northern at which County Judge Fred V. Heinemann will be the principal speaker. The judge, who was chairman of the canvassing board which recently made a recount of the ballots cast for the Republican nomination for district attorney, will discuss Elections. Plans for the meeting are being made by Donald Breitrick, Ellington town clerk and president of the association, and John E. Hantschel, county clerk and secretary and treasurer of the group. W. C. Dougherty, Liberty town clerk, is vice president of the association.

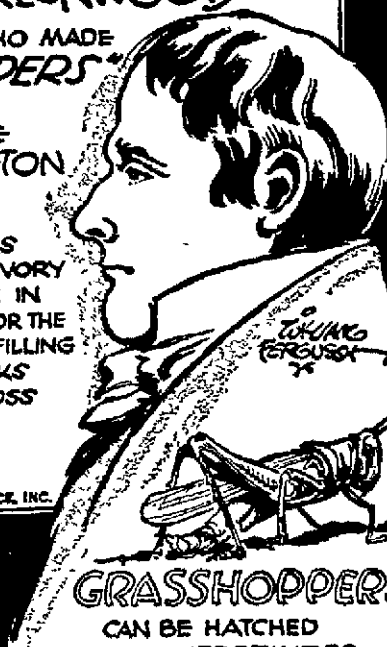

Debate Work Starts Soon for Students

Debate work for men and women at Lawrence college will soon be started. Nov. 8 has been set as the tryout date for men. Try outs for women will be held during the latter part of November. Letters have been sent to five colleges in Minnesota and Illinois to arrange a schedule for two short debate trips. Letters were written to Carleton college, Northfield, Minn.; St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minn.; Hamline university, St. Paul, Minn.; Rockford college, Rockford, Ill.; and North Central college, Naperville, Ill. The men's debate team will make an eastern debate tour next semester.

May Abandon Class in Blue Print Reading

Unless more enrollments in the blue print reading class at Appleton vocational school are received before next Monday, the evening class may be abandoned, according to Carl Bertram, school coordinator. Twelve persons enrolled, but only five attended the opening session. An effort is being made to increase the class to 24 members, to warrant the continuation of the course. The instructor is Raymond La Vee, Appleton architect, and the course con-

Appleton Philatelist Re- ceives Issues From Historical City

First covers of the new William Penn commemorative stamps issued for the first time on Monday at Chester and Philadelphia, Pa., and New Castle, Dela., were received here yesterday by Wilmer Schlafer, member of the Appleton Philatelic society. The covers came from Chester, Pa., the city in which Penn landed in 1682. Mr. Schlafer also is expecting covers from the other two cities in which the stamps were first placed on sale.

The stamps are probably of the most unique design issued by the treasury department in many years being a far departure from standard postage. A large lavender portrait of William Penn covers most of the surface, and the numerals 3, designating the denomination, are embossed in keynotes. The name William Penn appears across the bottom of the stamp, and the words United States Postage are engraved in large letters across the top. Stamps of this issue probably will be placed on sale here soon. At the present time Appleton philatelists are awaiting their covers of Daniel Webster stamps, issued in commemoration of Webster's birthday anniversary.

Sand Table Project For Brookside Pupils

Students of Brookside rural school, town of Center, are carrying out an attractive sand table project, according to a report from Miss Eleanor A. Torrey, teacher.

One half of the sand table represents the landing of the Pilgrims at Cape Cod, and the other half represents the settlement these Pilgrims built a year later, when they inaugurated Thanksgiving day.

Each child is permitted to make suggestions and contributions to the project, which will be retained through Thanksgiving day next month.

Sidelights on Politics

Tulsa, Okla.—Congressman Wesley Disney, Democratic candidate for re-election in the First Oklahoma district, and H. C. Franklin settled a political argument with their fists in the city hall. After the congressman knocked Franklin down, the two shook hands.

San Francisco—Two air-minded candidates are scrapping it out with a militant minister for the U. S. senatorship. Campaigning by airplane tours are the veteran William G. McAdoo, Democrat, and a newcomer in national politics, Tullitt Tubbs, Republican. The Tubbs man in the warm contest is the Rev. Robert P. "Fighting Bob" Shuler, crusading minister. He received the prohibition party nomination.

Plan School for Election Boards

County Clerk, Attorney, And Judge to Address Workers

Three speakers will address county election boards at the courthouse Thursday night, Nov. 3, for an election school which has been planned by John E. Hantschel, county clerk. The wide irregularities found in the recent recount of the ballots cast in the race for the Republican nomination for district attorney, led the county clerk to plan the school.

The speakers will be County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, District Attorney Stanley A. Staidl, and Mr. Hantschel. Judge Heinemann, chairman of the canvassing board which conducted the recount, will discuss the errors the board uncovered and also will tell what should have been done. Mr. Hantschel will explain various election forms and their proper use, and Mr. Staidl will answer questions. Following the talks there will be open forum discussion. Mr. Hantschel is urging every election board member to attend the school.

Class in Slide Rule

Opens This Evening

The new evening class in slide rule will hold its first session at Appleton vocational school at 7:30 this evening. This course will be offered for a period of 12 weeks, the class meeting every Wednesday night. There still is room for several people who wish to enroll. Registrations will be received before the class opens this evening, according to Carl Bertram, school coordinator.

Name Trilling President of Kiwanis Club

Taxation Burden of Automobile Industry Discussed by Craig

Menasha — William G. Trilling was elected president of the Menasha Kiwanis club at its regular meeting in Hotel Menasha Tuesday noon. Jack LeVois was named vice president and R. L. Pankratz, treasurer. The secretary is appointed by the new president.

Six directors were selected and a change in the bi-laws covering the directors' tenure of office, providing for the annual selection of two directors to serve three year terms, was adopted.

On the basis of votes received, A. W. Wassman and Gilbert Chappleau will start the new rotating schedule with three year terms; H. Griffith and A. Keller will serve on the board for two years, and Lee Craig and E. Fahrback for one year.

Plans for a "ladies' night" meeting at the Memorial building Nov. 16 to which Menasha Rotarians, Neenah Kiwanians and their wives will be invited, were announced by Jack LeVois, program chairman. A committee composed of two members' wives from each club will complete arrangements. Mrs. H. O. Haugh and Mrs. W. G. Trilling were named by the Menasha Kiwanians.

Scores Tax Burden

The burden of taxation born by the automobile industry, was the subject of a talk by Lee Craig, former president and present district trustee.

Craig referred particularly to the automobile dealers, and said that everything in their place of business excepting labor is taxed and that a considerable portion of the total is absorbed by the firm. Classifying the burden as unjust, and using his own company as an example, he said that 22 per cent of the income is paid in taxes annually.

At the next session of the legislature, Craig stated, the Wisconsin automobile dealers will advocate a 50 per cent reduction in automobile license fees. The fact that Wisconsin's $18 average fee is higher than any of the surrounding states, and that no reduction is allowed for used car licenses after a portion of the year has elapsed, is partially responsible for the number of Wisconsin cars, estimated at 120,000, which are not being used this year.

Oppose Sticker Tax

The automobile dealers also will oppose the sticker tax which imposes a tax on the dealer for every new car he displays; and will oppose the proposed compulsory insurance law because, Craig stated, it has, in other states, resulted in marked increases in the number of accidents.

The plan favored by the dealers to reduce accidents is a semi-annual inspection of all automobiles. Tried in Pennsylvania, the plan resulted in a 40 per cent reduction in mishaps.

Referring to the tax problem again, he said that the automobile industry and automobile dealers sought only to be on a plane with business men in other fields.

At the conclusion of his talk, Craig showed a film which contained information relative to savings account increases in America and other data.

Kellnhauser High in Elk Bowling League

Menasha — Toppling 617 pins in three games with individual games of 196, 215 and 206, Kellnhauser led Elk's league bowlers on Monday evening. But his team, the Blue Bills, dropped two out of three games to the Gilbert Papers.

C. Pierce's 599 total helped the Buck Tails win three straight games from the Menasha Record, while the First Nationals took three from the Haugh Druggs; the Fahrback Agency won three games from the Legionnaires and the One Four One aggregation dropped a pair to the Thrifty Five.

In Knights of Columbus league competition on Monday evenings Monday evening, P. Gazecki of the Admirals took high single game honors with a 215 total, while his team lost two out of three tilts to the San Pedro. The Shamrocks won three straight games from the Ninas and the Santa Marias took two out of three from the Crusaders.

Reilly Denounces Silent Campaign Against Roosevelt

Democratic Nominee Has Great Courage, Says Congressman

Menasha — Devoting almost his entire address to an endorsement of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency, Congressman Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac, candidate for reelection from the sixth district on Democratic ticket, addressed a rally of Neenah and Menasha Democrats at S. A. Cook armory Tuesday evening.

Congressman Reilly scored the whispering campaign against Roosevelt, relative to the presidential candidate's physical condition and told in detail of the New York governor's successful battle for health since he was stricken with infantile paralysis in 1921.

"The point I want to make is this," he said, "Nine thousand nine hundred and ninety nine men out of ten thousand, afflicted and stricken as Roosevelt was, would have laid down and quit and given up life's battle. Not so with Roosevelt. He had the courage, the determination to fight a terrific battle with an insidious disease and to finally conquer it."

"Need Courageous Man"

"If there ever was a time in our country's history when we needed as president of our country a man of great courage and determination, a man who can almost look death in the face and still fight on to victory, that hour has come. That hour, that heroic fight that Gov. Roosevelt has made against his affliction especially fits and equips him to wage in the office of president of the United States a battle that must be fought if we are going to bring about, in this country a more equitable distribution of the results of toil and industry."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt's record as governor of New York tells the story of a governor who does things and who can fight for his ideas. During his four year term as governor he has always had a hostile legislature that has opposed his program but in every instance he has taken his cause to the people and compelled them to do his bidding. In this respect his record as governor of New York is much like that of Governor Smith."

"I favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the modification of the Volstead act pending repeal. The Democratic platform and Mr. Roosevelt take a clear stand in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and the modification of the Volstead act pending repeal."

Problem For States

"The Republican platform and the Republican candidate for the presidency both oppose the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. Both say nothing about beer. Both favor an amendment to the Eighteenth amendment that would leave the situation as to speakeasies, hi-jacks and illicit stills much as it is today."

"The Democratic party believes that the liquor problem is a problem for each state to handle for itself and that this question ought to be taken out of national politics forever."

"I favor the reduction of national expenditures. During the last session of Congress I voted for an economy program that brought about a reduction of over seven hundred million dollars in national expenditures. The Democratic party has promised a further reduction of 25 per cent in the cost of government at Washington."

George Banta Jr., who presided at the meeting, introduced several of the county and assembly candidates in attendance, including William Grimes, Democratic candidate for assemblyman from the second district; Robert M. Heckler for Winnebago co. clerk; J. R. Coyle for county treasurer; Dan J. Gaffney for sheriff; George C. Faust for clerk of courts and Henry P. Hughes for district attorney.

Scores Republicans

Banta, in his introductory remarks, said that in the closing weeks of the campaign the Republicans are bringing out old-time methods of getting votes and referred particularly to efforts on the part of employees to influence the votes to their employees. Such action, he said, is a reflection on the intelligence of the employees and there have been legal means used to stop it. Before introducing Hughes, he warned against such attempts, which may show themselves within a few days.

Hughes, Democratic candidate for district attorney, delivered a brief address prior to the talk by Congressman Reilly. He emphasized Banta's statements about unfair methods to which, he said, the Republicans are resorting and told of the failure of some newspapers to relate all the facts about anti-Hoover demonstrations.

He discussed the qualifications of F. Ryan Duffy, Democratic candidate for state senator, as compared to John Chapple, and said that Duffy is a natural leader. Referring to the candidacy of Congressman Reilly, he pointed out that now is the time when a man, who by his experience in office has shown that he works for the taxpayers, is needed.

Banta, introducing Duffy, also lauded the Congressman's work in office and related examples in which Reilly met and cooperated with his constituents in the solution of problems in the district.

Several selections were played by the Menasha high school band as the opening feature of the meeting.

Take Photographs of Recitation Classes

Menasha — Photographs of several recitation classes at Menasha high school, for use in the Nicolet, the high school year book, were taken Monday. The Nicolet staff, with Miss Margaret Stafford as advisor, is meeting regularly to continue work on the student publication.

Police Without Clues In Recent Burglaries

Neenah—After a detailed investigation, Neenah police early today were believed to be without a clue to the identity of marauders who burglarized a Neenah home and seven private garages here Saturday night.

A hunters' licence button near one of the garages was found but investigation disclosed that it had been issued to a man living on route 2, Appleton, who was in no way involved. He was well known in the neighborhood and recently had peddled cabbages in that vicinity.

Closer check by victims of the thieves revealed that a number of articles which had not been missed by the owners at first, were carried away.

Need for Mission Work Stressed in Convention Talks

Japanese Missionary, Appleton Pastor, Give Principal Addresses

Neenah — The theme, "Missions Matching the Hour" was sounded in an address by the Rev. D. E. Bosserman, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, Appleton, at the Tuesday evening meditation of the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Women's Missionary society of Wisconsin conference here. Miss Helene Harder, missionary at Oglala, also discussed the same topic, and recalled her problems in dealing with Japanese.

"There always has been a tendency to relegate Jehovah to the background—Israel did so until He had been lost to them, and then God sent punishment because of their sins," Mr. Bosserman declared.

He said there is a worldwide proclamation in the gospel, and that is the word "Go." The speaker referred to the biblical passage, "and other sheep have I and they must be brought into the fold."

"The Lutheran church in Japan was reorganized about a year ago and has become a synod," Miss Harder declared. She said the program encourages all congregations to become self supporting as soon as possible. The average income is very small, yet when it is compared their ratio of giving to that of the American church member is put to shame, she said.

The speaker told of many incidents where young people of Japan would make various sacrifices, risking their lives at times in order to go to the Christian mission or school to be baptized.

Not Recognized

Miss Harder said that Christian schools are excellent but were not recognized by the government because of a law written in the educational department of the government, to the effect that no school shall be recognized that holds a devotional service or has a religious course.

She spoke of the opening of kindergarten work and said this field was being stressed. But the Buddhists are copying them in order to prevent their children from attending Christian gatherings, she stated. She also stated that America is not considered a Christian nation any more in the eyes of the Japanese. Japanese from on American business methods, motion pictures and other phases of American life, she said.

Following communion services this morning the convention was formally opened by the Rev. J. F. Fedders, president of the Wisconsin conference. Reports of officers and committee heads constituted the major portion of the business session.

Dr. Fedders, speaker of the morning, based his address on an inscription found in St. Paul Cathedral, London, which reads: "A man who at all times gave his strength to the weak, his substance to the poor, his sympathy to the sorrowful and his heart to God."

"Some people have their history recorded on stone, but we must write ours in the hearts and souls of men and women," he said. The speaker declared that the business of the church is mission work.

Mrs. Malmberg, president of the Synodical society brought greetings from other branches.

Shemanski Sets Pace In K. of C. League

Neenah—Ralph Shemanski scored high series in Knights of Columbus league bowling here Monday evening when he toppled 603 pins on single games of 161, 223, and 219. Doctor Donovan took high single game with 235 while William Ryan scored 235 and R. Suess, 215.

Employment, Not Insurance, Chief Need Now—Kohler

Republican Candidate for Governor Asks Support of Ticket

Neenah—"No one will go hungry in Wisconsin if I am elected governor if it is humanly possible to prevent it," former governor Walter J. Kohler told a large Neenah audience in a campaign address in the Embassy theatre here Tuesday afternoon.

Kohler has received Neenah's support on every occasion when he has been a candidate for the governorship and when he appeared on the theatre stage to speak here Tuesday, the audience rose and applauded. Further applause followed his endorsement of the national republican ticket and of the candidacy of John E. Chapple for United States Senator.

Before beginning his discussion of state issues, Kohler pointed out that he is the Republican candidate for governor and that state issues would be his problems, but that he was endorsing the national Republican ticket headed by Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis.

Works For Jobs

Referring to the problem of relief, he said he favored the levying of additional income taxes if necessary and the expending of this money where needed, but non-politically. The best solution of the problem is employment, he said. People want employment assurance not employment insurance.

In providing public works for employment, a number of elements should be considered, he maintained. The work must be needed, must be carefully planned, and must be efficiently and economically carried out. In that field, highway construction is the most practical, he indicated.

He said he believed in the effectiveness of not only industrial but also residential rehabilitation and that he had advocated the stimulation of private industry. We have passed the ebb of business, he stated.

Beginning a discussion of his tax relief program he said, "Our first responsibility after we have saved our people from starving is to save their farms and homes."

Would Relieve Farmers

He proposed first an exemption in real property taxes effecting the farms and homes, pointing out that under the present law income tax payers get an exemption which is denied to property owners. He also favored the semi-annual system of tax payment.

There must be secured enough money to pay the costs of government, operated with economy and efficiency, he explained, but the greater burden should not fall on those least able to bear it and the sources of taxation from which the most income is derived should not be unduly disturbed.

Wisconsin's advantages are diversified industries, diversified agriculture and a combination of both, and Wisconsin industries should be on a parity with industries in other states as far as taxes are concerned.

He spoke briefly on his approval of vigorous control of utilities and opposition to pyramiding by holding companies. He also advocated a central organization to coordinate the police forces throughout the state.

Give Instructions on Using Voting Machines

Neenah—Instructions for using the voting machines which will be on trial in the elections here Nov. 8, today were sent to all Neenah homes. A sample ballot, included with the instructions and general information about the machines, contains an exact reproduction of the face of a machine as it will appear on election day.

Two voting machines will be used in each precinct for the elections. During the past week, hundreds of voters have tried out the machines now available for demonstration purposes at the Korotev Brothers News Depot, Jandrey's Store, the Republican women's campaign school in the Burke apartments and at the city hall.

Dole System Faces Change In Some Parts

MacDonald Promises Re-consideration of Present British Regulations

London—(AP)—Reconsideration of some phases of the national government's dole system came as a promise from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today as 2,000 members of a nationally recruited "hunger army" moved within a stone's throw of London.

It is the "means test" in the dole, or unemployment benefits administration, which has brought much of the rising tide of discontent that has culminated recently in protest riots and now the march on London.

The prime minister spoke during debate yesterday on a motion of censure against the government's dole policy introduced in the house of commons by the labor opposition. The motion was defeated, 462 to 55.

Mr. MacDonald defended the government's policy and declared the means test, which is given to determine the means of a dole applicant to subsist normally, cannot be abolished.

But some questions, the premier said, would be reconsidered. These might include the items of pensions and savings which under the present arrangements, must be spent before an unemployed person is eligible to receive benefits.

The dozen or more groups of unemployed marchers who have been rugging—and riding when possible—along muddy roads reached outlying suburbs last night, and were moving closer in today toward Hyde Park, their goal.

Additional "army" is growing. London suburbs are expected to swell the ranks considerably for the final trek Thursday morning into the heart of the city.

As far as could be ascertained, no provisions have been made by leaders of the march for food and accommodations. This would indicate this vital need would become a public responsibility on existing agencies.

Last night the London County council promised to "deal with the situation" provided accommodations were not otherwise provided. The council at the same time rejected a proposal to receive a deputation of the marchers. Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the prime minister who is a councillor, voted with the rejectors.

Although there was no hint of disorder in the wind, the London police continued to make elaborate preparations against trouble. A warning was issued against acts likely to lead to a breach of the peace.

The columns of marchers rested last night at such suburban localities as Hatfield, Deptford and Greenwich. One of the contingents was composed of women ranging in age from 16 to 62.

Home-Grown Rations Cut Poultry Costs

This fall, when Outagamie-co poultrymen are faced with the probability of continued low prices for poultry and eggs, the use of rations made from home-grown feeds will be one effective way of converting into a profit what might otherwise be a loss.

So states J. B. Hayes, of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, who offers a formula for a simple home-grown mash mixture that may be of help to many Wisconsin poultrymen. This mixture, which is only one of several, consists of 150 pounds of ground yellow corn; 100 pounds of a ground grain combination made from equal parts of wheat and barley, or equal parts of wheat and oats; 25 pounds of meat scrap or tankage; and two pounds of salt.

With this mixture milk should be fed as a drink, alfalfa hay or chaff should be fed in racks or hoppers, and oyster shell should be provided. Where milk is not available any water must be given as a drink. Hayes would add 25 pounds additional meat scrap or tankage to the mash mixture. Since cod liver oil should be fed during the laying season, one pint of this should be added to every 100 pounds of mash.

Produce Firm Fills Plant With Cabbage

By W. F. Winsley
Greenville—The Schreiter Produce Co. here expects to fill their cabbage storage plant to the half-way line this fall, and is now unloading cabbage for that purpose. From two to three carlots of cabbage are being shipped daily, from the local station. The price, however, dropped from $3.00 per ton to $2.50 Thursday morning.

No growers are storing cabbage in the warehouse of the Schreiter Produce Co., this fall, and only a few growers are storing in their farm buildings, according to the manager of the plant.

Madisen Moves Office To Printing Plant

Erik L. Madisen, editor of the Badger Legionaire and several other publications, is moving his office from 106 W. College-ave to the Badger Printing company building. The printing company publishes organs of which Mr. Madisen is editor.

This Little Piggy
San Francisco—Mrs. Thomas Kaisses hired a lawyer to protect an order by the city health department that the family's pet pig be banished to the country, or killed. The city granted a reprieve until Jan. 1. The lawyer argued the pig was a playmate for the children and a solution of the neighbor's garbage problem.

Appleton Man Gives $200 to Republicans

A campaign contribution of $200 to the Outagamie County Republican committee was reported to John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Tuesday by L. L. Alsted, Appleton. Under the law contributions of this nature must be reported. Mr. Alsted also gave $200 to the committee before the primary election.

Alfalfa Favored As Reliable Crop In Outagamie-co

Ever-Present Demand for Crop Keeps Price High Enough

BY W. F. WINSEY

One of the best and most reliable cash and regular farm crops that can be raised on soils around Hortonville is alfalfa. Other cash crops such as potatoes and cabbage are often profit-breaking failures on account of low prices and sometimes over-production, but this is impossible with alfalfa. In a dairy section there never can be an over-production of alfalfa, and prices that do not pay the cost of production as is often the case with potatoes and cabbage. As long as cattle are raised the demand for alfalfa will be strong and the prices good.

Even the past year of severe drouth and low prices of farm products Merlins Fulcer, of Hortonville harvested 70 tons of alfalfa hay from two cuttings of 15 acres and sold his surplus loose at $14 a ton. If he had ground his alfalfa in a hammer mill and bagged and tagged the meal, he could have realized $37 per ton for his surplus. Many other farmers of Outagamie-co are using alfalfa as their cash crops. That the art of raising alfalfa is easy is proved by the fact that Mr. Fulcer started only four years ago. His success is proved by the fact that he brought his stands through last winter in good condition and got a large yield last summer.

Need to Dressing
The secrets of raising alfalfa in the soil about Hortonville are deep plowing and top dressing with barnyard manure and ground limestone. The reason for the deep plowing is that the residue of plant loads pass down in light soil quickly and is not available to the young alfalfa plants. Lime and manure produce the best result when used as top dressing for alfalfa for the same reason that the young plants get the feed when their roots are short.

After several years of costly experimenting and failure with plowing marl and limestone under for the raising of alfalfa, a number of farmers on light sandy soils of Waupaca-co began top dressing with lime or marl and manure and sowing without plowing their fields, their idea being that fertilizers sink deeply and quickly in sandy soil out of the reach of the young alfalfa roots. Large crops of alfalfa have been raised in some townships of Waupaca county after the farmers changed from plowing under lime and fertilizers to top dressing.

Two of the outstanding alfalfa producers of the town of Hortonville, Outagamie county are Otto Dorschner and O. P. Cuff whose farms are separated only by a highway. Mr. Dorschner after much experimenting discovered a very successful method of raising alfalfa ten years ago and he has stuck to his method ever since.

Plows Fields Deep

SHOOTS AT U. S. SPEED RECORD

Here is the "flying wing" plane in which Claire K. Vance, veteran of the air mail service, plans to make a transcontinental flight from Oakland, Calif., to New York for a new speed record. Fuel tanks, the cockpit and the baggage compartment are in the wings of his tailless plane. Vance's recent flight attempt ended when he found it necessary to make minor adjustments.

than usual to bring lime and other fertilizers to the surface. He top dresses his field with manure and sows five quarts of the best alfalfa seed he can buy and a little timothy with a nurse crop of grain at the rate of 1 1/2 bushels per acre. He is careful to make a smooth seed bed to prevent the loss of any alfalfa seed. As he has a herd of 40 cattle 4 horses, and a herd of hogs he can top dress as often as necessary with manure.

He harvested 15 loads of alfalfa, the first cutting in a five acre field last summer. His five acres of alfalfa is now five years old and is as thrifty as ever. He had a nine acre field of alfalfa that he cut seven successive years and then plowed under as thrifty as the first season.

He said that he spent lots of money in the purchase of seed before he found out how to raise alfalfa but he has spent very little since he began plowing deep and top dressing his soil. As another farm economy, Mr. Dorschner, raises a crop of soybeans each year. He grinds his alfalfa hay and soybeans and cornstalks loaded with ripe ears, in a hammer mill and mixes the meal with ground grain raised on his farm. In this way he saves the expense of purchasing protein, commercial feeds for his dairy cattle.

Mr. Cuff has from 30 to 40 acres of very thrifty alfalfa on his farm that shows no signs of the last open winter and the severe drouth this summer. It would be hard to beat his stand in a thrifty acre field. He stuffed his barns with alfalfa hay last summer. The methods of Mr. Cuff in producing large crops of alfalfa hay each year have not been mentioned to the writer, but each season piles of ground limestone may be seen on his farm.

If Fulcer, Dorschner, and Cuff can raise big crops of alfalfa each year and use large parts of their products as reliable, profitable cash crops, every other farmer in the town of Hortonville may do the same thing if he adopts their methods or better ones.

Cranberry Crop Large in State

Wisconsin Production Estimated at 75,000 Barrels This Year

Madison—One of the bright spots in Wisconsin's agriculture this year is the cranberry crop. The estimated production of cranberries in the state this year is 75,000 barrels compared with 45,000 barrels a year ago according to information furnished by leaders of the industry to the Wisconsin crop reporting service. This is the largest crop Wisconsin has harvested since 1926 and in addition the quality is excellent.

The leading counties in cranberry production in Wisconsin are Wood, Jackson, Monroe, Juneau, Washburn and Barron though the crop is grown in other counties to some extent.

Wisconsin is tied for second place among the states this year with New Jersey. Ordinarily Wisconsin ranks third, but with a good crop in this state and a small crop in the east the state is up in second position. Massachusetts has long been the leading cranberry state.

Commercial cranberry production in the United States is largely limited to five states: Massachusetts, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Washington, and Oregon. The United States' crop this year is estimated at 527,000 barrels compared with 651,000 in 1931, a decline of over 19 per cent.

Wisconsin's crop is usually marketed late in the season going largely for the Thanksgiving and Christmas trade. Unlike most other crops, the bulk of the cranberries are produced in eastern states and move westward to market whereas other agricultural crops usually move eastward to market. Most of Wisconsin's berries are consumed in western states.

Miss Muriel Smolk, and Miss Bertha Larson, Madison, spent the weekend with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smolk, 619 W. Wisconsin-ave.

Honor Lambeau at Packers' Final Home Game

Bays Observe
Homecoming;
Meet StapesNew York Team Badly
Battered by Chicago
Bears Last Week

GREEN BAY—It will be "Coach Lambeau" day at the City stadium next Sunday and executives of the Green Bay Football corporation are counting on one of the largest crowds of the season for the Stapleton game, which will drop the curtain on the Packers' home season for 1932.

In order to give all the football fans a chance to attend the final home game and incidentally help pay tribute to the Packer coach, who has directed professional football activities here for 14 years, two thousand reserved seat tickets in the stands at the west end of the gridiron, will be placed on sale for 50 cents.

'Bargain Day' Prices
This "bargain day" price will hold forth only until Saturday night and all tickets must be purchased in advance. Sunday morning, the price of the tickets in the west end sections again will be $1.

Speaking of Sunday's game and the reduced price of admission, President Leland H. Joannes of the Football Corp., said: "At a meeting of the executive board, we decided to offer a limited number of tickets at half price, providing they are purchased by Saturday night."

Pay Tribute to Lambeau
"We want to give every football fan a chance to help pay tribute to Coach E. L. Lambeau who has been the dominating spirit in professional football here ever since it was established one record after another with the Packers and now he is ranked as one of the outstanding figures in the football world.

LOOKING FOR JOB
Charles (Buck) Goldenberg, Wisconsin varsity football player, who has been declared ineligible for cutting classes at the "U" is looking for a job in professional football.

Coach E. L. Lambeau received a telegram from Goldenberg on Monday saying: "Can you use me?" The Packer coach filed the wire for further reference.

"Green Bay owes a lot to Lambeau for he has placed the Packers in a peak position in football and I am confident that fans will jam the park Sunday, glad of having a chance to show their appreciation."

Invitations Mailed Out
Invitations have been mailed out to officials of all clubs in the National league and it is expected that several will be represented.

Dr. W. W. Kelly, who is a member of the National league executive board, talked to Pres. Joseph E. Carr over the long distance telephone Monday night and urged him to attend Sunday's game. The league head assured Dr. Kelly that he would be here if it was possible to sidetrack business engagements that were pending in the east over the coming weekend.

Reunion of Former Stars
Fitting in with the "Lambeau Day" celebration will be the annual homecoming of Packer football players of other days. This is an annual affair and the gridiron warriors of yesterday gather from far and near to look over the 1932 Green Bay football team and talk over the days when they were helping gain fame and touchdowns in Packer uniforms.

Among those who will be here are Howard (Cub) Buck, Neenah; Mayor Richard (Jab) Murray, Marinette; Milton (Moose) Gardner, Ashland; Elroy (Tubby) Howard, Winona, Minn., and about 20 other ex-Packer luminaries.

The Stapleton club, headed by Owner Daniel T. Blaine and Capt. Ken Strong, the greatest halfbacks in football history, arrived here Monday night from Chicago over the Milwaukee road and is headquartered at the Beaumont hotel.

Ted Bleier Named
Miami High Coach

Ted Bleier, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bleier, 920 E. Washington-st., and a former high school star athlete, has been named assistant physical director of Miami, Fla., high school this year, it has been announced. Graduating from Appleton in 1925 with a great football record, Ted went to Miami University where Cub Buck was coach and graduated there in 1930 after a great football career one year of which he captained the southerners.

Last year he coached Ponce de Leon Junior high and taught the Miami U. frosh. He expects to introduce and handle an intra mural program at Miami high, has been life guard for several seasons in Florida and is learning to fly a plane.

Another Metzger?
Florida University has a guard prospect who promises to be a second Bert Metzger, the mite moun-tain who played guard for Notre Dame in 1930. He is George McCampbell, who, while weighing 156 pounds is only two pounds over the weight of Metzger.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO ROCKNE

Kansans plan to erect a memorial at the spot on the rolling prairie where Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, and seven others were killed in 1931. Only a jagged stone now marks the site.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

IN addition to a number of other excellent results, the new football rules have had the effect of focussing more attention upon officiating and officials.

It has begun to dawn on a lot of folks that what they supposed was just a whistle-blower or a guy who galloped up and down the side-lines with a stick has a highly technical job and plenty of responsibility, involving speed of foot, agility, quick eye-sight, experience and good judgment.

"Let me describe a case or two, just for example," remarked Dr. Eddie O'Brien, one of the East's most prominent officials, after the Army-Pittsburgh game. "You saw Palmer (the umpire) call interference on a pass against Pitt and to my mind it was one of the finest decisions I have seen this season."

"The defensive player violated the rule by waving his arms, so as to interfere with the pass-catcher's

Columbia Opens

Name Committee to Investigate Charges of University Paper

New York. —(AP)— Investigation of charges of professionalism in athletics, particularly football, at Columbia University has been undertaken by a committee of seven appointed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the university. The inquiry will be in the hands of Dr. Insley R. Williams and Richard C. Babbs, alumni trustees; Edmund A. Prentiss, president of the Columbia University club; Rexford G. Tugwell, professor of economics; J. Bartlett Brebner, assistant professor of history; Peter C. Rhodes, secretary of the board of student representatives, class of 1933, and F. Gray Gatten, associate managing editor of the Columbia Spectator, class of '33.

The committee will investigate particularly charges that members of the football squad were shown favoritism in securing employment and favoritism from the college faculty and that alumni scholarships were granted some football players in order to induce them to come to Columbia. There also have been suggestions that the football coaches were receiving salaries out of proportion to their duties.

Lou Little, head coach, who has developed a strong team in his short tenure of office, had no comment to make on that phase of the inquiry.

"I am paid to coach the team and have nothing to do with the executive side of the matter," he said. "I'll do whatever I'm told to do. My job is coaching and that's all I'm supposed to do."

Meanwhile there was a report that Little already had signed a new three-year contract with Columbia, starting at the end of the present season. It was said he had taken a salary cut of about $3,500. His present contract generally has been understood to call for $18,500 annually.

Cubs Get College Star
The Chicago Cubs have signed Roy Henshaw, southpaw twirler of the University of Chicago for the past two years. He will report for the spring training trip to Catalina next February.

Polo's Popular
More than 70 freshmen reported for the class polo team at Ohio State this season. The sport is intra-mural at that school vision. As it happened he also touched the receiver, but this was scarcely noticeable except to an official closely watching every detail.

"The new rules outlawing crawling by the offensive side or piling on by the defensive team have added immeasurably to the difficulties of officiating. They are good rules but complications often develop."

"To give you another idea, suppose a halfback on Team A gallops loose and runs 60 yards before he is tackled. He tries to get up and advance, forgetting the new rule against crawling. In the meantime he is piled on by the opposing players. That's another violation, making a double-foul, and under Rule 12, Section 3, the ball must be brought back to the point where it was put in play and be played over again."

On the same subject, D. F. A. Lambert of Columbus, who has been officiating for 22 seasons, mostly in the Middle West, says:

"Football is a complex game and the rules therefore are not simple nor are they quickly learned or understood thoroughly, regardless of what some may say. There is a considerable need for proper instruction upon the rules and how to apply them when one appreciates that in Ohio alone over 15,500 high school boys are in uniform. . . . Younger coaches, especially, are not taught enough about the rules."

"Few realize it takes time and and real work now to officiate properly. Formerly, most any prominent football star could get a job officiating but today he is just 'in the road' unless he has developed himself."

Dr. Lambert's contributions on "A Study of the 1932 Football Rules" and "Football Officiating and Interpretation of the Rules" have become text books this season among officials as well as many coaches.

Dick Hanley, Even
In Defeat, Finds
Reason to be Happy

Evanston, Ill. —(AP)—Although his team failed to gain a victory in playing Michigan and Purdue, losing to the Wolverines and tying the Boilermakers last week, Coach Dick Hanley has found something over which to be thankful.

"I am glad we didn't have to play against Harry Newman's passing and the pass catching of Paul Moss of Purdue in the same game. It's lucky they're different teams or they would never stop scoring," he said.

Irish to Have Much Trouble With Pitt

Chicago. —(AP)—Judge Walter Steffen, whose Carnegie Tech football team was soundly beaten by Notre Dame last week, figures the Irish will have all kinds of trouble with Pittsburgh this week.

"He likes the Pitt backfield, says the line is powerful and thinks the Ohio State tie last week was just the thing to give the Panthers the psychological edge."

"Notre Dame was the only team to defeat Pittsburgh last year," he said. "Immediately after the season coaches and players began planning how to even it up this year. Team psychology is in Pittsburgh's favor."

The Judge, however, was not ready to go on record as predicting a Pittsburgh victory over the Notre Dame horde.

The University of Alabama will lose 11 of its crack football squad by graduation this year. Among them is Captain John "Hurricane" Cain.

Jack Maypole Wins
Outboard Motor Title

New York. —(AP)—Jack Maypole, 15-year-old youngster from River Forest, Ill., has won the national outboard motorboat championship and will receive the Townsend medal, emblematic of the title, at the annual national motorboat show here in January.

Maypole scored 11,738 points during the 1932 season according to a compilation by the American Powerboat and National Outboard associations. The compilation covered all outboard regattas sanctioned by the A. P. B. A. and the N. O. A. between May 1 and Oct. 31.

Highs Work Hard

West Last Week
Worries Orange

Taking advantage of the fact the ground was wet and soft, Coach Joseph Shields of Appleton high school sent his charges through a hard tackling and blocking drill yesterday afternoon. The workout was the first of its kind in a long time, Shields having feared the possibility of injuries on the hard ground.

All confidence that the Orange may have had over the game Saturday with Oshkosh here went by the boards with announcement that Oshkosh looked pretty good upsetting West Green Bay 7 and 6. The result was a gang of hard working, serious 11, indeed gridders last night.

Reports are that Ernie Ruppel and Milton Schulze, the latter still nursing a bruised nose, will be ready for the game Monday. The latter will wear a special head gear. Ruppel was in last Friday's game just long enough to try a kick from placement, and Schulze sat on the bench throughout the afternoon.

Dutcher, guard, and Campbell, back, are expected to report regularly this week but neither will see action until the Sheboygan game a week from Saturday. Dutcher had a bad ankle and Campbell a dislocated shoulder.

Ledgers moved into a tie for first place honors in the Riverside bowling league when they beat the Bonds in two games on Arcade alleys. The other first place team is the Writing aggregation which won two from the Bristols. Leola Dunn had a 157 and E. Ottman a similar score in the first Writing win. Bristols won the second game by a pin margin with H. Brock's 192 and Writings topped the third with L. Dunn's 158. H. Brock had 147-192-139-527 for the Bristols but other members of the team didn't even come close.

Davis led the Ledgers in their win, getting scores of 184, 172, 139-500. J. Hardt had a 173 and E. Hilfert 202 in the last game. For the Bonds J. Guilfoyle had 170, 184, 174-528.

McKinley High Wins
Touch Football Game

McKinley Junior high touch football team defeated Roosevelt by a score of 12 and 0 in a game played last night. Thursday night the teams will play again. McKinley has won two and tied one this season. It beat Wilson 24 and 0, tied 6 and 6 and defeated Roosevelt 12 and 0.

McKinley kicked to Roosevelt and it was tag on the 30 yard line. Roosevelt punted to McKinley on the 40 yard line. Ned Davidson of McKinley caught a pass and ran to the 20 yard line where Buesing tackled him and Roosevelt drew a 15 yard penalty. With the ball on the five yard line K. Van Ryzin passed to Davidson for a touchdown. The second marker came when DeShaney intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards for a marker.

Orange Reserves Win
From Neenah, 13 to 0

Appleton high school sophomore football team coached by Leland DeLorge won another game last night when it defeated Neenah high reserves by a score of 13 and 0. Schmitt scored the first touchdown for the Appleton squad and then plunged for the extra point.

On the next kick off, LaMarr, the vee Appleton quarterback, gathered the oval into his arms and printed 65 yards for a touchdown by LaMarr. Bleier and Schmidt were the stars of the Appleton squad.

Redmen Hope for

Defeat, Ripon Over
0 to 0 Tie

Ripon—"Nature in the raw is seldom mild."

That best describes the Viking versus Redmen battle to be staged at Ripon Saturday. It will be homecoming at Ripon college and the Lawrence game will be the featured number on the entertainment program for the old grads.

Traditional rivalry between the two colleges reaches its climax in the annual gridiron conflict. Additional factors foreshadow a tough scrap. Lawrence is smarting under the 6-0 jolt received at the hands of Carroll after defeating Thistlethwaite's team earlier in the season. Ripon, held to a scoreless tie in its first Big Four game by Beloit, and sensitive to its failure to score in any of its four starts, also is on edge and determined to vent its feelings upon the Vikingsmen.

Ripon played a strong game against Beloit, demonstrating superior class in all departments. But the Redmen were frustrated in five clear-cut scoring opportunities, once by a fumble, three times by penalties, and once by lack of punch or strategic resourcefulness. Ripon's defense was excellent, and Duac's punting kept the state-liners deep in their own territory most of the game.

Homecoming plans under the direction of Coach E. J. Fort, Atkinson, include a giant pep meeting Friday night; a sopp-frosh greased pole contest, Saturday morning; open house at fraternities and sororities after the game; and a dance at the gym in the evening.

Badger Faculty
Bans GoldenbergStar Tackle Disqualified
For Cutting Too
Many Classes

Madison. — Because he absented himself continuously from two classes without excuse, Charles (Buckets) Goldenberg, veteran Wisconsin football player, who was expected to be the bright particular star of Coach Spears' Badger line this fall, has been placed upon final probation, which automatically renders him ineligible for football.

The decision of the faculty committee having jurisdiction in the case was unanimous, according to Registrar Frank Holt. The committee voted to permit Goldenberg to remain in school, dropping the courses in question, and on final probation. The two courses dropped represent five out of a total of 16 hours Goldenberg was carrying. No student on final probation can represent the university in athletics.

Goldenberg's disqualification, following the failure of Captain Greg Kabat and Harvey Brandholt to resign their 1931 playing form, forces Coach Spears to present a line which, from tackle to tackle, will be made up entirely of inexperienced players. Koeng, at center, was a "B" team player for two years. Kummer and Mario Pacetti, the guards, are sophomores. Molinaro, at left tackle, was a reserve guard two years ago and Thurner, at right tackle, has been a reserve end for two years. Haworth, left end, played the position last year as a sophomore while John Schneller, right end, played two years at fullback. This is probably the lightest line in the conference.

Loss of Goldenberg further depletes Wisconsin's reserve line strength, which was little enough before. Reserve tackles include only Bratton, Tobias, Davis and Southworth, the first two reserves for two years; the last two sophomores. The only reserve guards are Bucci, a substitute last year, and Kromraj and Rotter, sophomores.

Rain, Mud Fail to Stop M. U. Workout

Milwaukee. —(AP)— Rain and mud yesterday failed to check the intensive scrimmage program with which Coach Frank Murray has started off the week in his preparation for Marquette's homecoming game with West Virginia here Saturday.

The Hilltop coach, however, did let his regulars off with a light workout, except that he devoted some time to Adolph Gorychka, his former end turned halfback, and big George Rosemark, his left guard from Rhinelander. These two saw plenty of scrimmage against Red Dunn's freshmen.

Another lineman has been converted by Coach Murray into a back. Roy Morstadt was transferred to the offensive department Monday and continued there yesterday. He is a lad of 192 pounds, who has shown promise as a blocker.

Dummy scrimmage and signal drill occupied the time of the regulars.

Captain Greatest Player
Buster Brannon of Athens, Tex., captain-elect of Texas Christian University basketball team, is considered the greatest guard the Christians have yet seen. He played on two national championship quintets when he was in high school and was an all-Southwest Conference selection in 1931-32.

Orv Mohler Quits Grid
Because of Neck Injury

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES. —(AP)— Orville Mohler, one of the greatest quarterbacks the University of Southern California ever had, was rudely pushed out of the football picture today by the injury jinx.

The slight but staunch signal shooter, who was so instrumental in the Trojans' climb to the mythical national championship a year ago, and the guiding hand in their string of five victories this season, was ordered off the gridiron by school officials to avoid possible paralysis, or even death.

Mohler was knocked unconscious in Southern California's game against Stanford last Saturday while leading interference. In the play he hurt again the tissues which hold together the fifth and sixth vertebrae in his neck, pulling them slightly apart.

The original injury occurred a year ago when he was struck on the neck in the pile-up that followed a plunge with the ball against California. Mohler was out of competition two weeks.

Dr. Packard Thurbur, team physician, said "the injury amounts to a crushing of the intervertebral disc between the two vertebrae. This condition, coupled with a certain amount of relaxation of the neck ligaments, make Mohler more susceptible to serious injury."

"There really isn't much a fellow can say," Mohler commented. "I have worked seven years to make my senior year the biggest and best of my college career and it is awful to have to go out like this, but I am convinced it is the right thing to do."

Coach Howard Jones, always reluctant to eulogize his players, said Mohler "is one of the greatest quarterbacks I ever coached. I have never seen a better ball carrier anywhere, but the last thing I would do would be to sacrifice a boy to win a football game. For his sake I hate to see him drop out."

Punts and Passes
Syracuse, N. Y.—For the present at least, the sure is keeping Nathan Kantor, 17 year old sophomore from Hicksville, L. I., off the Syracuse football squad. He is six feet three and weighs 283½ pounds. And when he reported yesterday in uniform or shoes could be found to fit him.

Milwaukee, Wis. — Just the fact that it is the "homecoming game" seems enough to assure Marquette of a victory over West Virginia Saturday. The Golden Avalanche has lost only two homecoming games in the last 12 years.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth has one good reason for believing the Yale "Yale" may be broken this year. For the first time in many seasons the Indians are approaching the game without a long injury list. Road Morton is nursing a broken nose but he is expected to play.

LaFayette, Ind.—Purdue is claiming a couple of records of sorts for scoring. The Boilermakers have played 36 consecutive games without being blanked and Paul Pardoner, star drop kicker, has been successful in 16 out of 17 kicks for points after touchdowns.

New York.—For the first time in his coaching career, Chick Mehan runs up against a team coached by one of his former pupils when Manhattan plays Ogelthorpe this week. For the first time in many seasons the Indians are approaching the game without a long injury list. Road Morton is nursing a broken nose but he is expected to play.

Lake Forest College
Waukegan. —(AP)—Football practice at Carroll college yesterday was directed toward Saturday's game with Lake Forest college, to be played here.

The Pioneers have shown improvement in every game and Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite, in his first year, now has them in first place in the Big Four conference, with the season half gone.

Lake Forest, outweighted in the line and backfield, subdued North Central college last week, for the team's third victory.

Stagg Warns His
Maroon '11' About
Over-ConfidenceBadger Lineup Again
Shifted; Kizer Works
On Reserves

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO. —(AP)— It has been a long time since over-confidence on the part of University of Chicago football players has worried A. A. Stagg, but he has been downright busy this week trying to talk his Maroons out of thinking Illinois will be a pushover Saturday.

Buoyed up by their victory over Indiana last week, the Maroons are inclined to think Illinois will be rather easy. Stagg told them yesterday that a similar attitude by Indiana last week assisted in the Hoosiers' downfall. Pete Zimmer probably will be held out of the Illinois game, to give his injured knee plenty of rest before the Purdue game. Pat Page, Jr., however, will be back in action, partly offsetting the loss of Zimmer's passing and returning kicks.

Illinois worked in the rain yesterday and again there were frequent changes in the lineup as Coach Bob Zuppke sought to steady his defense and speed up the attack. There were more shifts at Wisconsin where Dr. Clarence Spears is trying to get his Badgers organized for a surprise against Ohio State. The Buckeyes probably will line up the same as against Pittsburgh, and this week will be spent on improving the offense.

Kizer Sides Reserves
Defense against forward passes and a search for a substitute for Roy Horstmann, the workhorse full-back, is occupying Coach Kizer at Purdue. Horstmann has played all but two minutes of three Big Ten games and may need help. Halfbacks Fred Hecker and Duane Purvis were tried at full yesterday, and one or other will get in against New York University if Horstmann requires rest.

Minnesota also is being drilled on pass defense for the Northwestern game. The throwing of Pug Rentner and Ollie Olson has coach Bernie Bierman more worried than the functioning of his own attack. The Wildcat regulars started again yesterday, but were due for a full sized session today. The Indiana squad was split up by Coach Billy Hayes who indicated that the best blockers would start against Mississippi State Saturday.

Iowa was due to leave today for Washington, D. C., to meet George Washington in a night game Friday. Michigan worked on new plays and met test them out against Princeton Saturday.

New York. —(AP)— Earl (Dutch) Clark, quarterback of the Portsmouth Spartans of the National Professional Football league, has taken a wide lead over the field in the race for ground gaining honors.

The former Colorado college star has gained 314 yards in five games against 277 for Ken Strong of Stapleton. Bronko Nagurski of the Chicago Bears and Jack Grossman of Brooklyn stand third and fourth with 244 and 242 yards respectively.

Clark also is staging a merry race with Benny Friedman of Brooklyn for passing honors. The Portsmouth ace has completed 14 of 42 attempts for 199 yards and Friedman 13 of 38 for 168 yards. Harry Eising, former Marv's end now with Portsmouth leads in receiving passes with 11 for 138 yards.

Flash Herber of Green Bay leads the kickers with an average of better than 50 yards in 20 boots.

Eyes, Lips Highlights Of the Face

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Yesterday, our beauty lesson stressed the fact that eyes should not be neglected or abused. We did not cover the entire subject, by a far shot. An entire book could be written on the care of the eyes; but if I left with you the thought that perfect health is the first step toward sparkling eyes and that local care is necessary to keep them bright and beautiful, I am content.

Remember that the days are getting shorter. Be sure that such artificial light as you need to work by, to read, write, sew or see under should be of the right volume and reflected at the right angle from behind the left shoulder. Otherwise shadows will be cast on your work which will tax the eyes.

Screen Stars Omitting Rouge

The eyes and lips remain the highlights of the face. Several of our screen stars are completely omitting rouge from their makeup. And some are even going without powder. Of course, that is not for women with shiny noses. But the make-up that is ebbing from cheeks seem to attach itself to eyes and lips in the form of deeper, more colorful beauty for these features. Eyeshadows are offered in greater variety than ever. Platitudes, golds, iridescent combinations. Fascinating, yes, but only for the most glamorous. Otherwise, they seem out of place. Personally, I think the most conservative shadows, such as blue-gray for light blue eyes, deep blue for evening for almost all types, green for hazel or brown eyes, particularly for evening wear and for Auburn haired types, brown for brown eyes for daytime wear.

If you have never used shadow before, limit it to evening wear at first. Blend it very carefully from the inner corner of the eye outward so that the greatest amount of color is directly over the pupil, about the center of the lid. Gradually as you become expert use just a touch of eyeshadow on the lid for daytime.

Mascara is another item that is receiving honorable position on more and more dressing tables. Get the kind that does not run and does not break the lashes. It is well to apply a little vaseline first and then gently brush the mascara over it. Remember that a little is enough. Don't pile it on or it will give the lashes a beaded and artificial look.

Speaking of vaseline, use every night on the lashes it will help promote their growth. In spite of the popularity of the long, artificial lashes, the natural variety of luxuriant, long lashes still receive the largest vote of admiration.

A cloth saturated in vinegar and rubbed over brick tiling will make the tiling look like new.

To whitewash wooden floors add two tablespoons of kerosene to hot soapy water used for the purpose. It will cleanse the boards and will also keep any insects that may be lurking in the cracks of the wood.

Salt or tea leaves sprinkled on the carpet will collect the dirt quickly and prevent dust from flying all over everything.

If sausages are rolled in flour before cooking they will not break. They may be toasted, stewed, grilled and fried. This will be found a much better way than piercing them.

LIGHT TOPPED DRESS IS DISTINCTIVE

The convertible neckline attracts much attention in this youthful model.

Another interesting scheme is wine red crinkle crepe satin with the dull surface of the bodice and puffs of the sleeves.

It can also be carried out as a complete dress. You'll like it immensely in bottle green rough crepe silk.

New Woolen Fabrics Enhance Fall and Winter Mode

Tailored for morning, dressy for afternoon or sporty for runabout wear, the winter suits have one appealing thing in common, the beauty of the woollens from which they are made. (Left) Collegiate and very youthful is the spongy leopard skin cuffs, collar, belt and hat to give it a jaunty note. (Center) Very ladylike and flattering is the dull-surfaced suit in the new dark gray, with its pleated skirt and split peplum jacket. There is a choker of gailyak to top it. (Right) Stunning for smart daytime wear is a brown diagonal woollen suit with beaver trimming its short jacket and fashioning a muff.

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE NEA Service Writer

Paris—Years ago wool was synonymous with obscurity and poverty. Women never aspired to woolen dresses. They dreamed of velvets, satins, taffetas, and all the other silks for their special dresses, and wool was set aside for all utilitarian and therefore "unesthetic" clothes. It was usually harsh to the touch and heavy and ungainly.

Then wool jersey was invented and since that time wool weavers have vied with silk manufacturers for women's preference, with the result that now the elegant's wardrobe will include as many, if not more, wool dresses than those fashioned of silk.

It is easy today to achieve a certain shining smartness with silk, but the charm of the perfect wool dress is hard to beat. The fact that wool fabrics are now as costly as silks is another incentive for the discriminating dresses to select the former in preference to the latter. So that from being one of the least important mediums of the haute couture, wool now occupies as high a place as silk.

Many New Fabrics

The 1932 woollens prove once again that the French master weavers are first in the field with new ideas. Dordier's novelties will be worn by smart women the world over this fall and winter. His Djalap promises to become as well known and as popular as his kasha. This is a soft basket-weave wool mixed with angora which gives it the slightest silvery sheen. There is a heavy quality for coats and a much lighter one for dresses, and in both there is an amazing number of fantasies—checks, diagonals, plain or with faint white or light stripes, huge pastilles, and checker-board squares.

Other new Rodier fabrics which will soon become household words among women are the Diersa Cortlap, Dubli-Djersa (showing a bouclé weave on one side and a plain surface on the other), Diersagor Parklex (with a parquetry effect), Nervella, Cortlap, Frizile, Strybursic, Cordubure and Twist.

Children Have Right to Plan Own Course in Life

BY DOROTHY DIX

Perhaps the hardest thing that parents ever have to do is to let their children grow up. They would keep them perpetual babies if they could. They would lead them through life by the hand if such a thing were possible, and never let them stand on their own feet. They would make them mental and physical weaklings who would always lean on mamma and papa and never have an idea or opinion of their own.

Of course, parents will deny this, but you will find that nine times out of ten, when fathers and mothers complain that their children are undutiful, it is merely because their sons and daughters have broken away from their tyranny and feel that as adult human beings they have a right to some liberty of thought and action, and to live their own lives in their own way.

Every day you hear fathers bitterly bawling the ingratitude of sons and saying that it is small pay that you get for bringing up a boy and sending him to college and giving him every advantage, merely because John wants to be a lawyer or a doctor instead of going into the hardware business with father, as he had always planned for him to do.

Every day you see mother weeping over Mary's unfeeling conduct and telling childless women that they are lucky not to have daughters who break their hearts, for after all the sacrifices you make for them they are so selfish they never consider you, merely because Mary refuses to go to balls and parties when mother has been looking forward to launching her in society and glorying in her being a belle, as mother was herself when she was a girl.

It is the morose children who never get mentally more than 7 years old who always run to mother and father for advice about everything they do, and who always begin every sentence with "Mother, says" and "Father thinks," who are the favorite fair-haired boys and girls with their parents.

Why people who have made no conspicuous success of their own lives feel that they have a right to dominate their children's is a very queer and all-finding out. But they do, and to this obsession we owe half the failures in life. Father forced John into the green grocery business when God had intended him to be a poet. Mother wept and prayed Tom into the ministry when nature had destined him for an automobile mechanic. Jane is an old maid because father and mother wouldn't let her marry the poor young man she was in love with. Sally is divorced because her parents picked out a husband for her whom she couldn't abide.

So it goes. We all know dozens of men and women who are miserable failures because their parents forced them into round holes that they didn't fit instead of letting them find their appointed square places, which they would have done if left alone.

Apparently it never occurs to these parents that their children have any individuality of their own, or any right to gratify their own personal tastes and desires.

Still less do the parents realize that their children may differ from them entirely in inclination and dispositions, and that the kind of life that would be onerous to them is the very thing that would make their children happy, or that the man or woman who would bore them to tears is exactly the sort of mate who would make a thrilling companion to their son or daughter.

Unfortunately many an old hen hatches out a swan and spends the balance of her life trying to keep it out of the water. This aberration of nature causes as much trouble as any one thing, for it produces the morbid, frustrated girls who develop into sour women and the tearful "misunderstood" mothers who weep over them and balk them to the last and keep them from doing what they want to do.

Then there are those parents who love their children so selfishly that they are never willing to be parted from them and who keep them prisoners at home as long as it is possible to do so. Father keeps

Even a bird is wiser and kinder in dealing with its young than human beings are. The bird pushes the young out of the nest when their time of physical dependence is over and forces them to use their own wings. That is what parents should do to their children. They should give them the right to use their own wings and to build their own nests and select their own mates.

Judge Acts as Cupid To Solve Problem of Young Girl in Court

Oklahoma City—(P)—A Round, gray-haired judge in the role of cupid solved the problem of what to do with pretty 15-year-old Geneva Westellison, who wouldn't obey her foster parents and was about to be sent to the house of correction.

When 21-year-old Alvin Burns protested to Judge C. C. Christison, "Geneva isn't delinquent. She's the sweetest girl in the world," the judge replied:

"We've got to do something with her. Will you marry her?"

"If she'll have me," was the quick reply.

"Get out and I'll see what I can do." Calling Geneva, the judge asked what she thought of Alvin.

"I think he's the sweetest fellow in the world. He's been awfully good to me," she said.

"Would you marry him if your parents consented?" the judge asked.

"I would but he hasn't asked me," came the low-voiced answer.

"He will in a few minutes," said the judge. And he did.

"Judge Clark can perform the ceremony," the smiling judge suggested to the happy couple.

"No, sir, I want a church wedding," said the bride-to-be. And it was.

GOOD LASTE TODAY

UNPLEASANT SITUATIONS

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a son 23 years of age who intends going on a trip to X with his best girl to stay a week. I told him he could not do that unless an older woman or another couple went too, but he says that is not done any more. Please tell me what is right?

Answer: It is all very well for young people to think they can defy Mrs. Grundy, but actually they cannot. Sometimes I am tempted to print a few of the hundreds of broken-life letters sent me. It is bad enough to pay for what one really does, let alone pay in lost reputation for what one has only seemed to do. This last is in the same wanton category exactly as lighting a cigarette with a yellow-backed bill. To the girl who intends to defy any of the moral conventions, my message to her is DON'T! Going back to the fundamental obligations of a gentleman, your son would be lacking in the first of these in letting her besmirch herself no matter how recklessly she may be willing to pay what she thinks is the price. The old melodrama's exclamation, "He didn't do right by our Nell," is thought by the average modern audience to be "scramblingly funny." But to one who has heard from several hundred Nells in these supposedly modern years, every phase of the "didn't think," "didn't mean to" and "just happened" stories are about as "funny" as visiting the maimed in a hospital.

Dear Mrs. Post: A short time ago I went with a man, whom I had met away from home, to an inn in my home town for lunch. My best friend is a waitress there, and as she served us I spoke to her several times, and before we left, invited her to my house to play bridge. She did not know the man I was with, and should the fact that she is a "best friend" and that our conversation was purely social have made it necessary for me to introduce them, even though she was our waitress?

Answer: Put this way, "Does one introduce the waitress to a friend with whom one is lunching?" The answer is "No." But put this way, "Do you introduce your best friend to another friend when you three are drawn into a conversation together, or do you become a snob and cut your friend because she is waiting on you?" seems to me to need no further comment.

Onions Do Share in Cutting Food Costs

The man who likes his steak "smothered in onions" has another good point in his favor, in case the other members of the household should be inclined to argue with him.

Onions are cheaper than ever.

Flapper Fanny Says

Makes Deschappelles Coup To Defeat Game Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It is very unusual to have the opportunity to make two fine defensive plays occur on the same hand, particularly when one of these plays is that rare piece of brilliance, the Deschappelles Coup. Mr. Nathan L. Pengis of New York writes in that this opportunity came to a friend of his, Mr. David Bentz, who sat East in the following hand:

South—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

♥ 7 6 4
♦ 6 5 3
♣ A Q J 10 5

Mr. Bentz
♠ K J 7 3
♥ A 10 8 5
♦ Q J 8 7
♣ K 3

♠ Q 8 2
♥ K Q 3
♦ A K 10 4

Mr. Bentz

The Bidding:
South West North East
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass 3NT Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass

The bidding does not require much comment, and probably a three notrump contract would be made in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. Mr. Bentz, however, is a very canny defensive player and was able to defeat the contract 1 trick by means of his brilliant defense.

The Opening lead was the heart 5, which was taken by the Ace, and East now made his first brilliant play—namely, the spade King. This immediately drove the valuable re-entry out of the Dummy, even though it immediately established the Queen in the South hand. Declarer then led a diamond from the Dummy, winning with the King, and tried the club finesse. This was Mr. Bentz's opportunity to make his second coup on the hand. On the club 9 he played the 2-spot, allowing Dummy to hold the trick. Declarer, now confident that the hand was a laydown, returned to his hand with the heart Queen and finessed the club a second time. Mr. Bentz pounced on this trick with his now singleton King of clubs, and eventually Declarer was unable to avoid the loss of 3 more tricks. It is hard to see just where the Declarer could have guessed that East was holding up on him. The club Ace play on the second round, if it failed to drop the King, would still produce but 8 tricks—one short of the contract. It is very difficult to criticize the Declarer for falling into a trap like this, although certainly Mr. Bentz deserves all the credit in the world for his brilliant use of the weapons of deception at his disposal.

TOMORROW'S HAND

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Rest, Not Spanking is Best Cure for Tantrum

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Ella ought to have a rest hour every day. She is cross every afternoon because she is too tired to go on cheerfully. She wouldn't have these tantrums and she would eat better if she had a short rest time after lunch. It wouldn't hurt if she had one before lunch too, but the afternoon rest is necessary."

"I know it. But she won't rest for me."

Whenever a mother or nurse says that the child does what she ought to do, any grown-up person of average intelligence, and that means all of us, can see that a little child gets a rest period at a stated period every day.

Suppose she does whine and fret? What if she does make a scene and howl and kick? You can manage her, or him, if you put your mind to it. You have the authority, the power, the understanding, that make you her superior. What is the matter? You have taken the responsibility for the child. Why not see it through? If you haven't the strength to make a child take his rest period there is the army and navy behind you. Think of that and go forward boldly.

It is nonsense to say such things. Teach the child that immediately after lunch she is washed, dressed and put to rest in quiet room. If the child is under four years of age he will sleep as a usual thing. After that age many children cannot sleep easily in the day time and if they do they lie awake at night, or push their bedtime hours back. Let them lie quietly and amuse themselves with a picture book or a toy. The idea is that they rest in quiet. Nobody talks to them or plays with them. They rest.

Habit is a great help in this. In the beginning you say, "Time to lie down. No matter what happens the child follows schedule. If he does the same thing at the same time every day his body will take on the habit and attend to the matter for him, relieving you and him.

Active children use up more energy than they can supply. By and by they are so tired that their nerves fail to register fatigue. All they know about it is that they feel cross, things bother them. Grown people annoy them. They begin to cry. "The tantrum can't stop. The temper tantrum comes next and then there is a battle, a spanking, and much upsetness.

Spanking is not the cure for a tantrum. Rest is the cure. Wash the cross child with warm water and pleasant soap. Dress him in fresh night clothes and put him to rest. Do this in an impersonal professional fashion. The less emotion that is stirred at such times the better. One emotional outburst leads to another and two storms make a cyclone.

But don't say, "He she, won't sleep for me." He isn't sleeping for you, nor resting for you, nor doing any of the other things for you. What he does is for his own growth's sake and your are responsible for it. You can manage him if you set your mind to it and that is your plain duty. Any successful mother tells you that.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"

If October 27th is the date of your birth, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 11:30 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:15 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Cares and responsibilities will seem to weigh heavily this October 27th on most people. The day will be a particularly cheerful one. There will be a good deal of chafing at the bit with the closely related desire for greater freedom. Greater happiness and good cheer will be apparent toward nightfall.

The child born on this October 27th will early show a keen business sense. In his play and games he will probably display tendencies that will point to a successful commercial career. Look for him to make trades of his toys and other possessions, and furthermore to come out well in the bargaining. At school he will do well, and should have favorable reports particularly in his arithmetic.

If October 27th is your birthday, you are essentially a business man. You probably live, breathe and talk nothing but your work. You are a good conversationalist when discussing your own field of endeavor but unfortunately you are limited to that, for your interests are few. You are a voluble talker, and enjoy athletics and games that do not require a great deal of concentration. You are thus able to mingle

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

PHIL strolled to the fire place and watched the flames for a minute, after the others had left the room. Joan, studying the clean-cut profile, the easy grace of the long strong body, had a sudden sense of loneliness. She would miss Phil, would miss him frightfully, if he went away!

But he wasn't going away... She relaxed. He would still be there. She was the one who could not make up her mind. If she found that her Venetian romance was just a dream whose romantic colors hadn't faded quickly enough there would still be Phil!

"Stop being a fool," she told herself, "look at the man's fire-lighted profile. 'If you want Phil why don't you take him?'"

But she couldn't. Not with the persistent ghost of a memory hovering in her mind. Not with half-remembered words running around her heart again. But suddenly she had a feeling now that reality was coming, that David Harter didn't matter as much as she had thought that he did.

But she had to be sure! Perhaps it was the excitement of thinking that maybe he had tried to find her that was giving her this new confidence. If she learned that he hadn't, she might be haunted by old memories again. But her eyes shone with a brighter, gayer blue and her voice was a little more vibrant.

Phil turned from the fireplace. "Going to marry me, Joan?" his voice was curiously detached.

"Asking me again, Phil?" she said. "I can't answer yet. I don't know."

"Of course. Just as you say." He even smiled a little. "But it's a thing that one usually knows."

"I know it. But I'm not like other people then. I honestly don't know! I like you loads. I even love you—but I'm not sure if it's enough. Oh, I don't know. I'm just not swept away."

"Don't be so mournful about it, Joan. After all, it's no crime. Because somebody else gave you a few more romantic thrills, you're waiting for the grand tumult to start all over again. Is that it? Well, it's your problem."

"Give me another week, won't you, Phil?" she asked. "After all, you've waited around ever so long now, a few more days one way or the other can't matter."

"Another week?" His mouth was set and his chin was stubborn. "It would be the same old story. Either you want me or you don't. And you should know."

Joan sat thinking quietly. She did want him—dreadfully—but she wanted someone else, too. And when you could want two people you probably didn't care enough for either of them, she told herself. But she might as well play safe. It would be dreadful to wake up, and find that Phil was gone forever, just when she discovered that he mattered rather dreadfully.

He was safe, secure, devoted. He wouldn't let her "slip away." He would come after her. And, best of all, long time since that rainy night in Venice. It had been a long time since a man had received the words of the song. But maybe something had happened to him—"Phil..." she began. "I can't be engaged just yet."

with others and talk more BUSINESS.

You have great physical and moral courage and are a hard worker. Down deep, you are very sympathetic, but you do not personify sympathy and in your way when it comes to the point of squeezing a few extra dollars out of some business man's pockets and into your own. You are shrewd but honest, and probably your greatest joy comes from successfully driving a hard bargain.

If you are a woman, you will probably succeed in business, but you would do equally well as a teacher or social worker. In the home, you would be an extremely skillful wife and mother. Both men and women born on October 27th should prove to be very kind and likeable. They are fine parents and enjoy having children about. You are extremely orderly and methodical; you have a place for everything and you see to it that everything is always in its place. You are most intolerant of slovenliness and carelessness in others.

Both Parties Need Ohio to Win at Polls

Same Trend That Prevails In Buckeye State Also Rules in Others

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Enroute from Washington to Ohio—Just as in 1916 the key to the presidential election lay outside of New York state and New Jersey, this year it is apparent that Ohio is an essential to the victory of either candidate.

Mathematical combinations may be set up which will reveal a spotty map, but if Ohio is counted out, then the same currents and tides that move the Buckeye state must also be excluded.

Ohio is important for other reasons. The issue of prohibition can well be dramatized this year as it has been in the past. Ohio was the home of the Anti-Saloon league. The rural districts have kept Ohio dry on many occasions. But at best, recent years have shown a tendency to even up and, finally, last time the veto triumphed. If Mr. Hoover with his previous leanings toward the dry side and with the support even now of dry organizations, cannot carry out his policy, then something more deep seated than prohibition has seized the populace.

Early polls report desertions galore from the Hoover Standard. For years the Republican party has promised all sorts of agricultural aid and has put into operation some of the plans sponsored by farm organizations. But today, with farm prices at the low point in history, the Hoover administration is unpopular and the object of much resentment.

Little Change in Trend
How widespread this is may be judged from the fact that the straw votes from the rural districts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois have shown in recent weeks almost exactly the same trend.

The question now is whether Mr. Hoover's radio speeches have turned the conservative-minded farmer back to his party; whether the drift is now in such proportions as to recover ground; and whether conditions in the agricultural states of Ohio and Indiana and Illinois, which have some industrial population, may prove somewhat different from states like Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska, in which agriculture dominates altogether.

The latest Literary Digest poll shows that out of 93,000 persons in Ohio who voted the Republican ticket four years ago, Hoover has 54,000 and Roosevelt 39,000. This is such a loss of Republican votes by way of percentage as we have not witnessed in any year, with the possible exception of 1912, when about half the Republican vote went to the Progressive party led by Theodore Roosevelt. The Republican party is dominant in the nation but while its majorities in each state are large, it cannot afford a desertion of more than 40 per cent of the normal Republican vote.

Most of the straw vote balloting took place before President Hoover began his fighting campaign. If he has regained one-third of the Republican vote which had turned from him he would just about even up the race in Ohio.

Desertions Are Puzzle

In Indiana, Roosevelt has acquired, according to the Digest poll, about 35 per cent of the Republican vote of four years ago and in Illinois about 45 per cent. These large slices of Republican states constitute a trend difficult to explain, unless it is assumed that the industrial cities are falling away from Hoover and that the rural districts are not voting heavily. But the claim is made by the tabulations of all polls nowadays that as much attention is paid to country as to city districts, though to be sure farmers vote in straw ballot canvasses.

It is not hard to overcome a Hoover majority of 500,000 if the Republican vote is almost split in half. The normal Democratic vote plus the gain from the Republican side would constitute a sensational result. For it is evident from all the polls that the Hoover gain from the Democratic vote of four years ago is negligible. Out of the total Digest vote thus far, eliminating about 100,000 votes from the southern states, the Roosevelt gain is about 445,000 Republican votes out of a total of 1,230,000 Republicans of four years ago who have voted in the Digest poll. This is about 37 per cent.

What has happened in the last two weeks? A trip through the middle west at this time may give a hint of the probable result.

See Continued Need Of Iodine Tablets

Madison—(P)—A recent inspection in eight county normal schools for cases of simple goiter indicates a necessity for more widespread and continuous use of iodine tablets among Wisconsin children, the state board of health announced today.

Dr. W. J. Miller, deputy state health officer, reported that 153 out of 363 students examined were found to have enlarged thyroids, constituting simple or endemic goiter, and questioning of the group revealed that only 183 of the 363 students had taken any iodine tablets during childhood.

Simple goiter results from a deficiency of iodine in the blood stream. Wisconsin is in the "goiter belt" lying in a region where neither food products nor water contain sufficient iodine.

The tablet containing one-sixth of a grain of iodine, to be given at the rate of one per week during the school term each year to children ranging from early school age to the age of 17 years, comprises Wisconsin's preventive of simple goiter, the board said.

The board warned that care must be exercised to avoid the use of iodine in treating adult goiters and pronounced and irregular forms of goiter among children save under a physician's care.

175 Parents Attend Go-to-School Night

The go-to-school night session of Edison school held last night was attended by about 175 parents of kindergarten, first, second and third grade pupils. Tonight the parents of fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils will visit the school. Aims and objectives and teaching methods were explained to the parents by the teachers, and the need of cooperation between home and school was stressed.

The two meetings take the place of the November meeting of the Edison Parent Teachers' association.

A Leg to Stand On

New York—John Russin had a leg to stand on when haled before a magistrate—only one. It seems he got tired of going through life with one flesh and blood leg and one wooden. So he took the peg one off and tossed it away. It landed on Patrolman Timothy Kelly's head. They held Russin for a hearing and impounded the leg.

Challenges

Editor's note: This is the thirteenth of a series of articles by Carl Becker, city clerk, on hints to voters.

Any inspector must and any qualified elector may challenge the right to vote of any person whom he knows or suspects is not a qualified elector. This may be done somewhat as follows:

When the person, open to challenge presents his or her ballot for voting, the challenger should inform the inspector in charge of the ballot box that he wishes to challenge the right of the person to vote because he is not a citizen; or that he is not 21 years of age; or for other reasons. The inspector then stops all voting for the time being; swears in the challenged person and questions him as to his qualifications. If the answers satisfy the challenger he may withdraw the challenge and the ballot can then be received, providing of course that the inspectors are also satisfied. If the challenge is not withdrawn and the challenged person insists on voting, the inspector will give him the special oath, which is along the same lines as a person takes when registering.

If the challenged person takes this oath his ballot must be received and counted. If he refuses to take the oath, or refuses to answer any questions the inspectors ask him, his ballot will be rejected.

When the ballot is received the poll list number of the voter is written on the ballot before it is deposited in the ballot box. This is done so that the ballot can be identified by the inspectors, and later forwarded to the county clerk in the special envelope provided for that purpose.

In case of recount proceedings challenged ballots are examined with great care.

U. S. Bankers Ponder Bond Issue for Mexico

Mexico City—(P)—The newspaper Excelsior said today a group of New York bankers and industrialists were in the city studying possible flotation of a $5,000,000 bond issue for reconstruction of the water supply, sewerage, and drainage systems of the capital.

The group has been here a week and has had conversations with President Abelardo L. Rodriguez and other high officials regarding

Chief Issues Warning On Hallowe'en Pranks

A strict warning was issued today by Police Chief George T. Prim in connection with the observance of Halloween on Monday, Oct. 31. The chief said that innocent pranks, such as noise makers and costumed celebrators, would be permitted on the streets, but that any pranks which tended to damage or destroy property would be considered a violation of the law and the perpetrators would be dealt with accordingly.

Chief Prim today issued orders that any youngsters found damaging property, soaping windows or otherwise causing trouble, are to be brought to the police station. The department also will take every possible step to prevent any advance celebration of Halloween, the chief said.

Chief Prim sees no excuse for rowdies banding together and committing depredations on fences, garbage cans and other property. "It is our duty to protect the lives and the property of the taxpayers and we are going to give them service," said the chief. "We were all boys once and want to see the youngsters have a good time but the celebration next Monday should take care of that angle. We are going to break up all gangs and parents are warned that they face trouble and expense if their youngsters are nabbed."

Policemen are being instructed to see that the ordinances are rigidly enforced. The officers will be stationed about various sections from now until after Halloween to render aid to embattled citizens who are trying to protect their property.

SYNOPSIS: Ferdinand Francis, Nan Weare's only aid in solving the mystery of her husband Jervis's disappearance, dashes off to New York to trace a pair of men, one answering Jervis's description. Nan is left alone at the Weare country estate to face the fact that Rosamund Carew and Robert Leonard, whom she suspects of kidnapping Jervis, both have alibis.

Chapter 41

MRS. MELLISH AGAIN
MRS. MELLISH came into the library. Nobody would have known that she had been cooking. She wore her black afternoon dress, with a medallion brooch depicting a pink church leaning a little sideways against a background of bright blue sky.

She had an air of dignity and leisured calm as she came to a standstill at a respectful distance and waited for Nan to speak. "Please sit down," said Nan. "I'd rather stand, ma'am."

Did she do it on purpose? Did she know how difficult it was to talk to someone who stands literally, as well as morally, on her dignity? Nan traced herself. "I'd like you to sit, Mrs. Mellish."

She indicated a chair near her own. After a momentary hesitation Mrs. Mellish advanced another chair—one without arms and straight in the back. Upon the extreme edge of this chair she seated herself, her body stiffly erect, and her hands neatly folded. After a suitable pause she said: "Yes, ma'am?"

Nan leaned forward. "I want you to help me." Mrs. Mellish registered a blank inability to understand how she could possibly be of any assistance to Mrs. Weare. After a further pause she said: "Yes, ma'am?"

"We're in great trouble about Mr. Weare," said Nan. Mrs. Mellish said "Yes, ma'am" for the third time. Nan got up abruptly. If she were to sit still and listen to Mrs. Mellish saying "Yes, ma'am" anything might happen. She felt a passionate desire to pick up the nearest book and send it crashing through the window, or better still, straight at Mrs. Mellish's head.

She let the curtain fall and turned round again. "You've known Jervis a long time," "Yes, ma'am."

"You knew him when he was a little boy." "Yes, ma'am."

"You've known him all those years. We're in dreadful trouble about him—we think—that something—must have happened."

"Yes, ma'am," said Mrs. Mellish. There was a little heavy brass box on the telephone-table; it was used to hold stamps Nan wrenched her eyes away from it. She wanted to pick it up and throw it at Mrs. Mellish—hard. With an effort, she stood where she was.

"Do you know of anything that might have taken him away suddenly?" Mrs. Mellish considered this in silence. She had been brought up to tell the truth, and classed lying with dirt, unpunctuality, gossip, and communism. There were worse sins, such as stealing, atheism, and immorality; but they hardly came within the purview of the respectable. After a suitable pause she compromised by saying: "I can't say that I do."

"You'd tell me if you did—wouldn't you? Mr. Francis has gone to New York to make inquiries there, but—I don't feel as if Jervis had gone to New York."

Nan turned away and walked to the end of the room and back again. Mrs. Mellish never moved at all. She was sitting there because she had been ordered to sit; otherwise, she would have risen when Mrs. Weare had risen; but, having been ordered to sit, sit she would until she was ordered to rise. A stubborn sense of her own superiority upheld her. She knew her place, if Mrs. Weare didn't know hers.

"Yes?" said Nan. "What door was it?" "It was Mr. Jervis's door—Mr. Weare, I should say so I blew out my candle, it being an awkward time of night to meet a gentleman, and me in my dressing gown."

"Yes?" said Nan rather breathlessly. (Copyright, 1932, Lippincott) Mrs. Mellish, tomorrow, at last tells her she saw in Jervis's room. Decidedly Ducky Oklahoma City—The "wild goose chase" for police was a tame duck chase. Answering a call that "suspicious characters" were prowling around a neighborhood with flashlights in the dark hours of early morning, a detail of officers found two hunters trying to round up their decoy ducks which had escaped. Old Enough to Vote Fort Moran, Col.—Mrs. Josephine Irwin waited 70 years to vote. At 91, she has just registered to cast her first ballot this November. She would not vote while her husband lived because they differed in parties. After his death she felt no need of voting until this election, she said.

M. E. Church Observes Its 65th Birthday

Many Attend Special Dedication Services at Clintonville

Special to Post-Crescent
Clintonville—Large crowds attended the special dedication and sixty-fifth anniversary services Sunday in the Methodist church of this city. The Rev. Alfred Hoad, pastor, presided. He spoke of the church's long history and the many improvements made to the building. The church was founded in 1847 and has since been a center of religious and social life in the community. The services were held in the new sanctuary, which was dedicated on Sunday. The church is one of the oldest in the state and has a rich heritage. The Rev. Hoad's sermon was well received and the choir gave a fine performance. The church is proud of its long history and looks forward to many more years of service to the community.

The sixty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Methodist church in this city was celebrated at the evening services Sunday, when the Rev. R. J. Bailey of Wauwatosa, former resident of this city, delivered the sermon. The church was founded in 1847 and has since been a center of religious and social life in the community. The services were held in the new sanctuary, which was dedicated on Sunday. The church is one of the oldest in the state and has a rich heritage. The Rev. Hoad's sermon was well received and the choir gave a fine performance. The church is proud of its long history and looks forward to many more years of service to the community.

Abirthday dinner was served to 165 people Monday evening in the church dining room. Otto L. Olen acted as toastmaster. Those who responded with talks were the Rev. Alfred Hoad of Oshkosh, the Rev. R. J. Bailey of Wauwatosa, William Switzer of Antigo, G. W. Jones of Appleton and Mrs. Ursula Doty of Chicago, who was one of the charter members of the local church. A history of the Clintonville Methodist congregation was presented by Walter A. Olen.

A number of former members of the church were present for the services on Sunday and the birthday dinner Monday evening. Among them were Mrs. Ursula Doty of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith of Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bailey and Mrs. W. A. Brandt of Wauwatosa, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Switzer of Antigo, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Switzer of Wabeno, the Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Hoad, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hoad and daughter of Oshkosh.

The Rev. W. C. Kurtz is the present pastor of the church. During the past two months the church has been closed and services were held in the Masonic temple. Among the improvements made on the edifice are plastic paint decorating in the main auditorium, new lighting fixtures, a vapor heating plant, a newly remodeled basement including a modern kitchen and a large dining room. These recent improvements to the building were made possible through a large bequest from the late Mrs. G. P. Bennett.

Dr. Charles A. Briggs of Appleton, district superintendent, will preside at the 4:45 a. m. service in the Methodist church.

The Rev. W. C. Kurtz spent Monday in Appleton, where he attended a bi-annual Methodist district conference.

Teachers of Clintonville public schools will be guests of the New London faculty Friday evening, when the latter group will entertain at a dinner at the home of Mrs. J. H. Smith. A tour of the new high school building, at 7:30, will be followed by a program after which dancing and the serving of refreshments will conclude the evening.

Mrs. Edward Larson entertained friends at bridge Monday evening in honor of Mrs. George Peotter of Appleton. High honors were won by Mrs. Rueben Larson and Mrs. A. J. Larson. Mrs. Larson was born Monday at Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kosuboski at the Clintonville Community hospital.

Leonard Dosnow arrived from Milwaukee Monday and in company with his father William Dosnow of this city, is spending several days duck hunting at Lake Poygan.

Mr. and Mrs. John Van Bostel and children returned home Monday afternoon from a trip to the state where they had been called by the sudden death of Mrs. Van Bostel's father, Andrew Wagner, aged 66. The funeral was held at Aniwa Friday. Survivors are the widow, one son and three daughters, Sam Wagner of Bryant Wis.; Mrs. Louis Sundin of Providence, Rhode Island; Mrs. William Kauza of Aniwa; and Mrs. John Van Bostel of this city.

A son was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Matel at their home here. The latter was Miss Germaine Georling before her marriage.

The Fox River Valley Undertakers association will meet Wednesday evening at the Marston hotel in this city. A 6:45 dinner will precede the program.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Steenbeck and son Leon, Mrs. Richard Korb and Miss Lena Kroll were visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Pennington in De Pere. The latter remained to spend several weeks there helping care for her sister, Miss Emma Kroll of Racine, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Billings, son Robert and the former's father A. Billings of this city spent Sunday with relatives at Allenville. The occasion was a farewell party for the latter's brother, Dennison Billings, who left Tuesday for his home in Portland, Oregon, after spending several months with relatives in Wisconsin. The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Vosburg and was attended by a large number of relatives from Omro, Oshkosh, Clintonville and Allenville. Dennison Billings visited in this city for a week at the home of his nephew, Guy H. Billings and family.

You can't always blame a man's disposition when he shows up with a grouchy some morning. Maybe the furnace went out during the night. Best way to prevent that, men here have found, is to burn clean, economical Stott Briquets. They hold the fire because they contain 50% washed Pennsylvania hard coal.

School Distributes First Report Cards

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Report cards for the first six weeks' period at the high school were distributed this week. Sixteen students were listed for highest scholastic record. Among the seniors who have attained an average of 90 or above were Delos Hobbs, 95.50; Elizabeth Demming, carrying 44 subjects, 90.33; and Erma Dorschner, 90.

Juniors qualifying for this record were Georgia Schantz, 92; Vivian Huntley, 91; and Jeanette Stern, 44 subjects, 90.60. Four sophomores had averages of 90 or only slightly under, two carrying more than the required four subjects. In this list included Daniel Meshnick, Margaret Wright, Kathryn Polzin and Helen Freiberger. Three freshmen receiving special honorary marks were Kathleen Doud, with 90.75; Marilyn Litts, with 88.75; and Burton Quant, carrying 44 subjects, 88.85-2-3.

Those qualifying for all high school honors were Delos Hobbs, Georgia Schantz and Vivian Huntley, all of whom had an average of 90 or better; Margaret Smith, Ruth Brehmer and Jeanette Peters.

New London Personals

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Arthur Hintz, Maple Creek, underwent an operation for appendicitis at Memorial hospital Sunday night.

Georgia Schuchla, 4, was treated for a fractured left shoulder bone at Memorial hospital Sunday night. The child fell from a day bed on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Ward are the parents of a son, born Monday at Community hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Burns spent Tuesday at Seymour.

Miss Beatrice Cooney of Madison spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cooney.

Miss Marie Karuhn of this city and Lee Schiller of Hortonville returned from North Dakota where they spent several days with Mr. Schiller's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mevenden and children of Milwaukee were guests over the weekend at the home of Mrs. Mevenden's sister, Mrs. John Monsted.

New London Society

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The first group of the Senior Sodality of the Catholic church will sponsor a public card party at parish hall Thursday evening. Between five hundred, schafkopf and skat will be played. The committee is headed by Miss Clara Cooney, Mrs. Bernard Bult and Mrs. W. J. Butler.

Legion Post Plans Wood-Cutting "Bee"

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Legionaires of the Norris-Spencer post will devote Sunday to a wood cutting "bee" at the home of Edward Poole, a disabled veteran, whose home is located in Lebanon township. Last year the Legionaires turned out nearly 100 per cent to aid in cutting wood for the family.

Cheesemakers to Attend Meeting

County Group Has Session At Black Creek Hall; Plan Dance

Special to Post-Crescent
Black Creek—The Outagamie County Cheesemakers association held a meeting Friday evening at the Black Creek town hall. Arrangements were made to attend the state convention at Milwaukee, Nov. 16 and 17. A larger attendance is expected at the convention this year, due to the fact that practically all counties have a local branch of the state organization.

A group of relatives will give a dance sometime in November for all cheese makers and their families. No meeting will be held next month.

At the Iowa state dairy show at Waterloo, Ia., J. P. Zehren of Coleman, won first prize on cheese with a score of 97 and J. N. Felton of Black Creek took second, with a score of 96. This was a national contest.

A group of relatives surprised R. H. Gehrke Sunday evening in honor of his birthday anniversary. The guests were Mrs. H. C. Ruh-sam, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Schoen-rock, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gehrke, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lasch, New London, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gehrke, Hortonville, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Merkle, Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mevis and children, Manawa.

Robert Dorschner, of Lawrence college and Miss Mary Pengilly of Milwaukee, were Sunday guests of Kenneth Laird.

Inspection Is Planned By Relief Corps Post

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Hortonville—The Francis Steffen Relief corps met Thursday afternoon at the I. O. O. F. hall. Plans were made to hold a pot luck dinner on Saturday at the lodge hall. Following the dinner the regular inspection will take place. It will be conducted by Mrs. Mary Liebman of Green Bay. Fifteen local members will attend the district convention next Friday at New London. Mrs. Alice Foreman, district chaplain, will take part in the services.

The Greenville members of the Rural Fire Department gave a dance at Greenville Friday evening. The local department members were guests of the Greenville members.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Becker and family left Saturday for New Holstein to attend the wedding of Miss Edna Starfeldt, a niece of Mrs. Becker. Miss Starfeldt was a former resident of this locality.

Members of the Baptist Ladies Aid society are making preparations for a play, "The Twelve Old Maids" which will be produced sometime before Thanksgiving.

A group of friends from Appleton, Medina, Dale and this village surprised Mrs. Chris Fahley Friday evening at her home, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. Forty guests were present and the evening was spent in playing cards. High score in bridge was taken by Mrs. Chris Fahley and consolation by Miss Beyer, and in schafkopf high score for women went to Mrs. Len Nutter and consolation to Mrs. Myron Voight while high score for men was taken by Mildred Borell and consolation by Ray Meyer.

Betty Dorschner underwent an operation for removal of a goiter at St. Elizabeth hospital Thursday.

Relatives and friends here received word of the marriage of Miss Edna Starfeldt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Starfeldt of New Holstein, to Ernest Markwaldt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Markwaldt of the same place which occurred Saturday at 4 o'clock at the parsonage of the Reformed church, the Rev. Herman Schmidt performing the ceremony. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Lucile Becker of Hortonville and the groom by his brother Edward. A 6 o'clock dinner was served to immediate relatives and friends at the home of the bride's uncle, Otto Kleist, at Potter. A dance was held in the evening at the Kleist hotel. The young couple will make their home in New Holstein where the groom is employed.

Mrs. Markwaldt formerly resided in this community. She was graduated from the Hortonville high school and taught school in New London and Hortonville.

Clintonville in Win Over Shawano

Cardinals Win Last Game
Of Season by Score
Of 6 to 0

Special to Post-Crescent
Clintonville—Playing their last game on the local gridiron for this season the Clintonville Cardinals downed the strong Shawano Indians by a score of 6 to 0 here Sunday afternoon.

The touchdown was made by Gladwin Kemmer, when he fell on the ball over the goal line after McCaw blocked Shawano's punt from their 20 yard line. O'Connor's kick for the extra point was not good.

Clintonville made four first downs and Shawano had three. Wagner and Schroeder were the star players on the visiting team.

Clintonville high school gridgers were trimmed by the Shawano highs at that place Saturday afternoon 60 to 0. The Shawano men were all much heavier than the local players.

Mr. Fred Hamburg, Miss Ethel Hamburg and Miss Alma Lang all of Fond du Lac were weekend guests at the home of the former's brother Fred Lang and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Meyer had as their Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Otto Meyer, Mrs. E. Allerton and Mrs. Ella French, all of Oshkosh.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bauman entertained the clerks of the Bauman store at dinner Sunday at their home. Several guests from Oconto Falls, their former home, were also present.

P-T Association Holds Session in Town of Brillion

President of School Organization

Forest Junction—An organization to function as a parent-teachers association was effected Monday evening at McKinley school, district of town of Brillion, comprising the town of Brillion, about the unincorporated village of Forest Junction, in which the schoolhouse is situated. Twenty-one people attended the organization meeting which elected Leonard A. Otto, school district treasurer, president of the new organization with Mrs. H. M. Zick as secretary, to serve until the next election of officers in September, 1933. Regular meetings of the group are to be held on the fourth Monday of every month when the school is in session.

Prior to organizing, the meeting Monday evening was addressed by Miss Mae Barnard, county supervising teacher, who spoke on the correlation of the school and home life of the pupils and the promotion thereof through the medium of regular meetings of the parents with the teacher. A class of girls from the school entertained the audience with singing, directed by Miss Hildegard Wetzel, teacher.

Grading Highway

Grading of 10.88 miles on relocated Highway 10 between here and Reedsville was begun Monday morning by working crews of the Krueger Construction company of Algoma. Equipment and machinery of the company were moved in late Saturday night and placed in operation Monday and Tuesday at the western terminal of the project outside of the east village limits.

Practically the entire route between here and Brillion requires construction of a new roadbed in a cross-country run from the Richard Huebner farm, at the foot of the east Forest Junction viaduct, to the right of way of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, which it parallels almost to the Brillion village limits. Rainy weather conditions marked the beginning of operations Monday and Tuesday. The heaviest rain fall in this area since last summer was experienced on Tuesday.

Leonard Seybold, route 1, has been chosen lay delegate to the annual Wisconsin conference of the Evangelical church which convenes at Two Rivers in May, 1933. He will represent the Forest Junction circuit which elected him at a quarterly conference session conducted at Emanuel Evangelical church in town of Maple Grove last Friday afternoon.

A basement is being constructed this weekend by John Kleifer of Sherwood for a tourist service station that is to be erected between the east and west viaducts at which is commonly known as the church corner in the village. The station will occupy the southeast corner of the angle formed by the junction of County Trunk Highway D and Highway 10, where Highway 57 turns northward. It will be a frame building, 20 by 24 feet. One half acre of land as a building site has been purchased from Layman Stanelle.

More than 150 ton of sugar beets, brought in on approximately 50 wagon loads, were delivered here Monday for rail shipment to Green Bay. Deliveries, which had been at a standstill for two weeks, were once more halted after Monday's activities to reduce the supply forwarded to the factory, which here is to average three carloads per day. Four cars were loaded on Monday.

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath and quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous cathartics cannot do without any of the bad after effects. Olive Tablets brings no gripping pain or any disagreeable effects. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound, you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Emil Warning Marries

Miss Margaret Schuman

(Special to Post-Crescent)

Hortonville—The marriage of Emil Warning, son of Mrs. Barbara Warning, of this place and Miss Margaret Schuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schuman, of Winchester, occurred Saturday at St. John Lutheran church, Winchester, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Mr. Peterson. The bride was attended by her sister Dorothy and Miss Melba Warning, sister of the groom; and the groom was attended by Carlton Schuman, brother of the bride and Alvin Poehlman, cousin of the groom. A wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives. On their return from a wedding trip the couple will live with the bride's parents on a farm at Winchester.

Miss Marion Towne entertained friends at her home Sunday evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in playing hearts, high score going to Miss Mary Oik and second to Miss Verna Collar.

Marvin Fuller returned Friday from New London Community hospital where he has been confined for the last two months following a leg injury sustained while cutting marsh hay with a reaper. He is able to be about on crutches.

The dinner given Sunday at the Hortonville auditorium by the women of the congregation of the St. Peter and Paul Catholic church was attended by 490 persons. The afternoon was spent in playing cards. High score in bridge was taken by Mrs. Garvey of Appleton and second by Mrs. Adella Gruehlich of the same place. High in schafkopf was taken by Lloyd Riedl and second by Mrs. Lawrence Miller. The prize in skat was won by Peter Oik. The venture was a success financially, $2

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

Life and Lillian Gish

The Cinderella story, according to no less an authority than James Branch Cabell, is the basis of the most romantic yarns in existence; and if that is the case, then "Life and Lillian Gish," by Albert Bigelow Paine, is as fine a romance as you would care to read. For it is the Cinderella story from start to finish.

Lillian Gish had a pathetically hard childhood. She went on the stage at the age of 6, or thereabouts, with a down-at-the-heels company doing one-night stands, and her girlhood was a time of very hard work and very little fun. For many years she had no playmates at all. Her schooling was sketchy. She was a breadwinner at a time when most girls are wearing rompers and learning to play hopscotch.

But Cinderella came up from nowhere to become a princess, and so did Miss Gish. In her early teens she got into the movies, back in the days when the movies were supposed to be beneath contempt; and presently she was one of the world's most famous women, rich, popular and idolized.

Mr. Paine makes his story about 10 times as interesting as I expected it to be. Evidently he is one of that vast army of males who are permanently in love with Lillian Gish; but that's all right because—well, aren't we all? He presents her as a supremely great actress, the greatest the films have produced; he also knows her as a very real human being and as an exceedingly glamorous woman. And his book is a good sidelight on the development of the movies, as well.
